Dan Tremblay, left, Andover's health officer, Everett Penney, health director, and Joanne Martel, code enforcement administrator, show some of the types of chemicals they expect to see during the town's hazardous waste collection this Saturday, Oct. 23, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at West Elementary School on Beacon Street. This will be a chance for residents to get rid of the paint, motor oil, antifreeze, pesticides and other hazardous materials cluttering their garages and basements since 1990, the last time the town funded a hazardous waste collection. Other acceptable items include furniture polish, paint strippers, solvents, aerosols and all kinds of batteries, from flashlight batteries to car batteries. Explosives will not be accepted. Voters approved $20,000 in the Health Department budget at April Town Meeting this year for the collection. General Chemical of Framingham will operate the collection for a charge of $15,930.

Chemicals that are allowed in the workplace

By Don Staruk

Several companies in Andover have materials on their sites that are considered hazardous and could cause property damage, injuries and even deaths if released in an accident, during a fire, or through misuse.

These include potassium cyanide, which when combined with other chemicals can produce deadly gas; sulfuric and nitric acids, also deadly when combined with certain compounds; isobutane, an explosive threat; and many more.

Fortunately, the town's public safety and health departments are kept informed about the presence of these materials and how to deal with them, and information is available to residents about their potential hazards, because a federal law requires that this information be made public. This reporting has helped encourage many companies, including Raytheon and Gillette companies, to reduce the use of such compounds in their manufacturing processes in Andover.

The Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act of 1986, commonly known as EPCRA or Title III, was created under the federal Superfund Amendment and Reauthorization Act (SARA) of 1986,

Warrant article seeks to abolish bus fees

By Neil Fater

A vote to abolish school bus fees is the seventh and final article on the warrant for the Nov. 8 Town Meeting. Article 7 is a citizen's petition. Mohawk Road resident Dennis Teves collected the necessary signatures to have the article placed on the warrant.

"Right now I'm paying $210 and in September I'll be paying $420," he said Tuesday. "What I'm trying to do is, come next September, afford the $420."

Mr. Teves has two children in the Andover public schools and, under the current policy must pay $210 to bus each student above grade six.

Mr. Teves said three issues are behind the article: He does not want the fees to supplement other school programs; he does not think that parents who need their students bused should be discriminated against; and he said that the town is

Group argues against inclusion

By Neil Fater

In what seemed to be a response to the Mainstream/Inclusion Task Force's report presented at the Oct. 5 School Committee meeting, the majority of the approximately 80 residents attending Tuesday night's public forum on leveling and ability grouping supported the existence of ability grouping in Andover schools.

"I am vehemently and unalterably opposed to eliminating (leveling) in

Coffeehouse manager charged with rape

By Don Staruk

Walter Pitts, manager of the R&R Coffee Shoppe on School Street, was charged by Andover police yesterday morning, Wednesday, with the forceable rape of an 18-year-old Andover woman, a senior at Andover High School.

The incident allegedly occurred at an apartment on Center Street on the afternoon of Monday, Oct. 4.

losing some state reimbursement money by charging parents the bus fees.

In order to place his article on the warrant, Mr. Teves needed to collect 100 signatures. He said he had no difficulty doing so and collected 140 signatures in two and a half days. He said his goal was not to be reimbursed for this year but to abolish the policy for next year. Such a move, he said, would give the School Committee time to rework a budget for next year.

"I believe the operating budget should be paid by all tax payers and not discriminate" against those who live farther from a school, he said.

"Ideally, I'd like to see no bus-ing fee," said Mary Lyman, School Committee member. "But what are they paying, $1.20 a day, 60 cents each way? That doesn't seem outrageous.

"I think it's a necessary evil," she said, though, "I do have a concern for the parent who has to pay more than one fee."

Ms. Lyman said she made a motion in August to establish a payment cap under which no family would pay more than $300. In June of 1993, Dick Muller, a fellow School Committee member, proposed reducing the fee from $210 per child to $125 per student, with a family cap of $250 per year.

A $175 per-student fee was approved by the School Committee in December of 1991 to cover the remainder of the 1991-'92 school year. The committee upped the fee to $210 per pupil prior to last school year.

"I'd rather see (a fee) in bus-ing than in something like sports or after school activities," said Ms. Lyman. "You don't know how many times (fees) discourage a kid who is on the fence."

'I don't want to see any teachers let go. But in a budget of $23 million I'm sure there's got to be room for improvement.'

Dennis Teves, author of Article 7

Ms. Lyman also said that the enactment of transportation fees was at least in part caused by the desire to keep student-teacher ratios down.

"That's what drives these types of decisions," she said.

"I don't want to see any teachers let go," said Mr. Teves. "But in a budget of $23 million I'm sure there's got to be room for improvement."

Under Massachusetts General Laws, students in kindergarten through grade six must receive free transportation if they live over one and a half miles from their school. Students in grades seven-12, however, "shall be liable for a transportation fee, which fee in amount will be established annually by the committee and shall not be less than the per-pupil cost of transportation," according to the school transportation policy.

The fact that parents could be charged for more than the actual cost of transportation caused debate earlier this calendar year.

"I believe that it is illegal and unreasonable to use fees, which do not reflect the cost of service, (to fund) other programs," said Mr. Teves.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Leaf composting opens today

The town's leaf composting site on Bald Hill will open for the season on Thursday, Oct. 21.

Residents can dump leaves, grass clippings and shredded yard waste at the site, according to Dennis Sheehan, administrative assistant at the Department of Public Works. Tree branches and limbs are not allowed to be dumped at the site and Mr. Sheehan said residents who have tree limbs to get rid of would have to call a private disposal company.

The composting facility will be open 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday each week through Saturday, Dec. 4.

League kicks off campaign drive

October is the annual League of Women Voters of Andover finance campaign month. Karen Young, finance chairwoman and board member, will send letters and follow up with a phone call to ask for support for the non-partisan studies, voter service forums and educational and environmental presentations which the league offers for the information of citizens of Andover.

The committee will ask the business community, friends and neighbors. Donations may be made in two ways: directly to the League of Women Voters of Andover or to the League of Women Voters of the United States Education Fund, which is tax deductible and benefits the local league.

"The finance campaign has always been strongly supported by Andover people who value the caring commitment to environment, Andover public schools and support for the democratic process," said Ms. Young.

This fall the League of Women Voters has been studying teens and values in the community. It will hold open meetings with the superintendent and School Committee on school reform and building plans, and with the selectmen on the long range Andover Capital Improvement Program.

In the spring, the league will sponsor a candidates debate and prepare town meeting warrant articles discussions. The league assists at the polls on election days and registers area voters. Membership in the league is open to women and men.

Deadline is Oct. 27 to be listed in town directory section

The Townsmen is preparing a special section, Town Directory & Newcomers' Guide, to be published Nov. 4.

Town Meeting to consider pay raises for town employees

By Don Staruk

Selectmen Monday night voted to insert seven articles on the warrant for the Special Town Meeting on Monday, Nov. 8, including one that would direct $129,430 of state aid into the compensation fund for town employees.

Article 1 asks residents to appropriate $819,559 in state aid, including $690,129 for the schools and $129,430 for town departments.

Selectmen voted 4-1 to propose that all $129,430 of the town-side money be deposited into the compensation fund for pay raises for town employees.

A 1 percent increase for town employees would cost $110,000, according to Mr. Stapczynski.

Selectman Chairman Bill Downs, former fire chief, voted against the money going into the compensation fund. Mr. Downs made a pitch that $40,000 be put in the fire department budget and used to hire two new firefighters.

Other requests for the money included a request for $20,000 to add a new police officer, a $52,000 request to purchase new voting machines for the town clerk's office, and a request for $69,000 for a voice-alarm system for the fire department.

The only other article to get any discussion at the meeting was a protest by Selectman Gerald Silverman about Article 7, a private article submitted by Dennis Teves, of 8 Mohawk Drive, which proposed abolishing school-bus fees. [See story beginning on page 1.]

Mr. Silverman felt that since voters had already approved the bus fees at April Town Meeting, and since they have been incorporated into the schools budget, such an article was out of line.

The town manger said an effort is being made to arrange for babysitting service to be available during Special Town Meeting, but arrangements have not been finalized.

Dr. Larsen clarifies senior center position

In other news about Monday's selectmen's meeting, Selectman Larry Larsen started the meeting Monday night by clarifying his position on the proposal for construction of a new senior center.

"I for one am very much committed to the idea of a senior center," Dr. Larsen said.

He was concerned that comments he made at a recent Our Town breakfast may have been misconstrued.

Dr. Larsen said he does support the efforts of seniors to build a new center. He

Patrolman files discrimination suit against town

By Don Staruk

An African American Andover police patrolman filed a discrimination suit against the town last month, claiming he is being unfairly disciplined by his superior officer because of his race.

Patrolman Lawrence Hickman, who has been on the force eight and a half years, with the patrolmen's union filed the suit against the town.

"It says he is discriminated against because of his race," Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, said yesterday morning.

"He's claiming that Sgt. (James) Hashem has written him up - disciplined him orally and in writing," and that it's because of his race and that no one else on the shift, all of whom are white officers, is treated that way, Mr. Stapczynski said.

Patrolman Craig Poirier, union president, would not discuss the suit when asked about it Wednesday morning. He said those involved on both sides had agreed not to talk about it. Patrolman Hickman, who works the 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. shift, could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

"A complaint has been issued by the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination," Mr. Stapczynski said.

The MCAD is in the process of investigation the allegations.

"They will decide if it's worth a hearing or it's not," Mr. Stapczynski said.

The town has two African American officers, James Moses, also a patrolman, and Patrolman Hickman.

Marty Meehan believes campaign finance reform is crucial

By Alix Driscoll

As U.S. Congressman Marty Meehan, D-Lowell, sees it, current campaign financing practices cause major problems in Congress. As he explained to a group of League of Women Voters members from his district Monday evening, special interest money has a strong hold on many legislators.

"I don't take PAC money," he said several times, speaking at a hotel in Westford.

"This practice prevents members of Congress from making good decisions. It is critical to every issue we deal with," he said.

Therefore, he has sponsored a bill to limit money raised out of state. It would cap both individual and political action committee contributions, and candidate spending. He said the ideal situation would be to require public funding of candidates. But he is not optimistic this will happen.

Brady Bill

To get the Brady Bill out of committee he co-sponsored the discharge petition. He expects this first gun control bill in 20 years will pass this session. It mandates a five-day waiting period before gun purchase.

Health care

"My sense is the president's plan is a first step to health care because it provides help and security to all Americans," he said.

Rep. Meehan is optimistic that there will be a vote early next year. Congress is now ready to work together, he said.

"The best opportunity is taking the president's plan and making adjustments," he said.

However, he cautioned about the very strong influence of special-interest money on key senior members and committee chair persons.

He believes the country will ultimately go to a single-payer plan, such as the McDermott bill, but there aren't enough votes to pass it yet. He said he would like to take insurance companies out of the system in the future.

Other legislation

Representative Meehan said he had co-sponsored the Violence Against Women bill to strengthen the victim advocacy program. It would fund advocates for women who have suffered domestic abuse to guide them through the often difficult court process.

With Senator Kennedy he has sponsored the Anti-Stalking Bill to mandate the carry-over of restraining orders across state lines.

Believing that education will prevent domestic violence, Rep. Meehan has sponsored legislation that will provide money to schools for tolerance training.

His stand on NAFTA?

"I haven't made my mind up yet," he said.

Doctors on the line

The Doctor Referral Line, a free physician referral and hospital information phone line, is being offered by Holy Family Hospital in Methuen, a Caritas Christi Health Care System member. The line provides information about physicians, hospital programs and hospital services and makes doctor's appointments for callers.

New playground opens in Andover – indoors

By Neil Fater

It is the dream of many engineers to discover the impossible: an instrument of perpetual motion. Robin Insuik has at least founded a place for similar motion. Besides, when one watches young children motor around her new business, one can't help but wonder if the former engineer isn't close to such a great discovery after all.

Perpetual Motion, the name of Ms. Insuik's indoor playground at 16 Haverhill St., is geared toward the tastes and needs of children, kindergarten age and younger. Filled with activity and contained in part of an old mill building, she said it "can certainly handle, easily handle, 75 to 100 kids," and their parents. Her permit allows her to admit 200 people.

"It's like an outdoor playground except that you pay admission," she said of the establishment.

Located on the first floor of a three-story brick building, Perpetual Motion is filled with slides and crawling spaces, padded areas for climbing and jumping, six conventional swings and one tire swing, a large sand-box, and a four-car train that includes a play kitchen in the caboose and a ball pit in one of the middle cars. There is also a water-activity table, a dress-up center, what Ms. Insuik calls a "spring about" which is essentially a four-way teeter-totter on springs, a small three-horse merry-go-round, stations to assist with motor development, and other toys.

Ms. Insuik said early favorites for the 6-and-unders included the ball pit, the spring about, the carousel and the kitchen in the caboose. A changing room is available for parents with infants.

"I've been working on it for a year and a half," said Ms. Insuik, who after concluding a job in laser research decided she wanted to do something else.

"I was home with my son (Benjamin) and I realized in the winter there was nowhere to go with your kids."

Thus, the idea for an indoor playground was born; and after a great deal of market and other background research, Ms. Insuik's business became part of a growing trend to move playgrounds off the street and under a safe roof. Ms. Insuik found the 16 Haverhill St. location in December and Perpetual Motion opened its doors Oct. 4.

"I did everything very methodically.

It's extremely safe. It's a community thing and it's a place to meet other parents," she said. "I'll do anything I can to help the parent community."

Perpetual Motion is not a day-care center, said Ms. Insuik, but is a place for parents and children to play with and meet other people. Though she said she expects her busiest time of year to be in the winter, Perpetual Motion will be open year round.

"It's air conditioned," she said. "It has advantages in the summer on those hot, sunny days, or on rainy days."

Conference is for women

The Merrimack Valley Business Women's Network of the Greater Lawrence YWCA will sponsor its first annual women's conference called, "A Day of Enrichment," today, Thursday, Oct. 21, at the Franciscan Center in West Andover.

The conference will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. when coffee and danish will be served. Participants will be able to attend up to a dozen workshops and panel discussions that begin at 9 a.m. with a break for a boxed lunch at noon. Workshops will continue in the afternoon.

Katherine M. Campbell, Ph.D. of Acton will be the keynote speaker. A professor of American history, Dr. Campbell's talk is titled, "Women and Community service: An Illustrious Tradition."

Through photographs and charts, she will cover the period from the 19th century when the image of women as morally purer than men resulted in their involvement in public service careers as reformers, social workers and teachers.

She will also address the employment trends for women, showing entry of women into traditionally male careers and the secondary market of underpaid part-timers. A futuristic glimpse of women will include the task of revitalizing community commitments in the 1990s while recognizing modern responsibilities.

To obtain a registration form or for further information, call the Greater Lawrence YWCA at 687-0331.

SCHOOLS

Open house at AHS is tonight

Andover High School has an open house tonight, Thursday, Oct. 21, from 7 to 9:20 p.m.

Parents will follow a shortened schedule of classes to meet teachers and receive an overview of the curriculum. Parents will also have the opportunity to join PAC and sign up for a subscription to The Rock.

The Education Reform Act calls for each school in the Commonwealth to form a School Council. The 15-17 member council at AHS will include five parents.

One of the five parents on the School

Council will come from the PAC officers, the other four will be elected tonight, during the open house. Of the elected four members, there will be representatives of parents of upperclass and underclass students and a parent of a student with special needs.

The names of parents interested in being elected to the School Council will appear tonight on the ballot, according to PAC president James Krasnook.

For information about the School Council, call Mr. Krasnook or Tim Thomas, AHS principal, at 470-1700, Ext. 263.

Senior Safari committee planning for 1994

The first organizational meeting of the Andover High School 1994 Senior Safari committee will take place next Thursday, Oct. 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the school's library annex. Volunteers are needed to help the organizers, senior co-chairwomen Nancy Raymond and Carol Viola, and junior chairwoman Bink Roberts, to make Senior Safari '94 a success.

The first Senior Safari, an all-night, drug-free, alcohol-free graduation celebration, was held in June at the AHS gym.

The organizers used the adage "It takes a village to raise a child" in organizing parental, student and community support.

About 80 percent of the 1993 senior class attended the celebration, they said.

The deadline for school news & info for the next issue is 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 22.

Free pre-school screening is held at Shawsheen School

The Andover public schools offer free screening for children who are 3 and 4 years old to assess whether a child might have a significant special need and require services before entry into kindergarten.

This screening, required by Chapter 766, the special needs law, is held at the Shawsheen School on the third Monday afternoon of most months. Screenings are currently scheduled for Nov. 15, Jan. 10, Feb. 14, March 14, April 11, and possibly May 9, school officials said.

Parents or guardians meet with school personnel and review health and developmental history. Brief screenings in the areas of language and motor development help to determine whether a more comprehensive assessment would be helpful.

All parents or guardians who feel their child might have a developmental lag or a special need are encouraged to call the school (470-1700, Ext. 201) to make an appointment.

MOVING AND TAXES

Even with the changes in tax laws over recent years, you may be able to deduct some of the expenses of a move that is caused by a change in your job location.

If your new work location means more than an additional 35 miles commute, if you move within a year of taking the job at the new location, and if you work full time for at least 39 weeks (the total is 78 weeks if you're self-employed), you can probably deduct the costs of your move. You should consult an expert to ensure you meet the IRS criteria and keep meticulous records of all of your expenses. Some of the deductions include househunting trips, temporary food and lodging at your new location, and many expenses related to selling your old home or buying your new one. The IRS has a publication (No. 521) called "Tax Information on Moving Expenses" that is good reading before you move.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate specialists at Century 21 Carriage House are ready to serve you. Feel free to visit our office at 10 High Street, or phone us at 475-1243.

The Andover Fund for Education will sponsor a used children's clothing sale Friday, Oct. 29, from 7 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 30, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Old Town Hall on Main Street. Good clean, used clothing can be consigned that Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Consignors will keep 50 percent of the sale and AFE will benefit with 50 percent of the sale.

Can your all-American child become a drug addict and survive? To find out, attend "an informative and inspirational session" by Andover High School alumnus Ralph Doughty and psychologist Laura Goodman Wednesday, Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m. at Old Town Hall.

Mr. Doughty will describe how he - a former Andover High football star - got involved with drugs and how he overcame his addiction. Learn how he found hope after drugs and how he continues to live his life drug-free. Ms. Goodman will discuss why people like Mr. Doughty become addicted to drugs and why and how they can overcome their addictions.

The evening session is free and is sponsored by the Greater Lawrence Chapter of Hadassah. Coffee and dessert will be provided.

New student-loan default rates released recently show Massachusetts has the 11th lowest rate in the nation. The U.S. Department of Education released new default rates for Massachusetts post-secondary institutions, showing an 8.7 percent default rate for the state's schools, the 11th lowest rate of the 50 states and far below the national average of 17.6 percent. The recalculated figures corrected errors caused by earlier data processing problems in Massachusetts.

10K Walk-a-thoners for Cancer Society to remember friends, Andover teachers

"Step by step...we're moving closer to a cure. Step by step...we will conquer cancer. Step by step...with your help. The importance of Step by Step is not in crossing the finish line, but in crossing the starting line."

The Andover public schools will sponsor a walk-a-thon on Sunday, Oct. 24, rain or shine, to raise money for the American Cancer Society. The non-competitive 10K walk will begin at noon, lining up on Bartlet Street at The Park.

A memory tree, present in The Park at Chestnut and Bartlet streets, will display purple ribbons on its branches. Step by Step provides an opportunity for participants to remember loved ones by writing messages of hope on these ribbons. The memory tree will be planted in The Park as a symbol of life.

"We are all touched by cancer," organizers said. "The meaning and message of this walk is symbolized by the participants who are undergoing cancer treatment, former patients, friends and families all demonstrating that cancer can be beaten. Chances are someone we know was or is fighting this deadly disease. When you see us walking, join us, wave, stop by The Park with a donation. Remember, step by step... we will conquer cancer."

Maine camp teaches Pike students about nature

Six Andover students are in the group from Pike school spending this week at Camp Chewonki on the coast of Maine. All the ninth-graders and Headmaster David Frothingham and faculty member John Hopkins are learning about the outdoors in Wiscasset.

The Chewonki trip has been an important learning and growing experience of Pike's senior class for more than 25 years. Students spend most of the week on a 400-acre wilderness site working with the professional staff. A highlight of the week is an overnight trip to sleep outdoors atop Bald Rock in Camden Hills State Park.

Ninth-graders are exposed to the natural environment, master basic outdoor skills and are dependent upon each other for comfort and safety.

Andover students taking part in the trip are Ben Brown, son of Drs. Jane Ballantyne and Andrew Brown of Central Street; Ricky Caruso, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Caruso of Granada Way; Sean Fitzgerald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fitzgerald

Pike School celebrates anniversary

Understanding Chiropractic

SPORTING ADVICE

Low-back pain among athletes is usually due to excessive stretching of the ligaments of the spine. This often results from a muscle imbalance that increases the curvature of the lower back. Known as lumbar lordosis, this pronounced curvature may be corrected by exercises prescribed by the chiropractor. By performing exercises that shorten the abdominal muscles and stretch the muscles of the back, athletes can encourage a backward tilt to their pelvises. Otherwise, a forward pelvic tilt exaggerates the curvature of the lower back and stretches the ligaments that hold the vertebrae together. Because chiropractors are experts in biomechanics, they can help athletes and sports enthusiasts to perform better and enjoy their sports more.

If you are involved in sports or exercise make sure you are doing your body more good than harm. We can help you to recognize a problem while teaching you how to maintain your health. Call us at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. Bent-knee sit-ups shorten abdominal muscles, while straight-legged sit-ups tighten a muscle (th iliopsoas) that runs from the pelvis to the inner side of the thigh bones.

Your Dental HEALTH

PROBING THE DEPTHS

According to the American Dental Association, 75 percent of American adults over the age of 35 will experience some form of gum disease in their lifetimes. To compound the problem, most are unaware that they have a problem until their gums bleed and become painful. By then, the disease is likely to be a fact, rather than a possibility. An early check for gum disease enables the dentist to stave off its harmful effect before the condition progresses to its latter stages. One of the diagnostic techniques available for detecting gum problems is periodontal probing. It involves using a thin metal probe to measure the depth of pockets between gums and teeth. If the probe is able to penetrate to a depth of four millimeters or more, it is a warning sign that the gum disease process has begun.

The basis for our practice in family dentistry is prevention. We believe strongly that one of the most important services we render our patients is a plan for preventive care. We'll counsel you on good nutrition to help promote both good oral health and family health, and we'll show you what you can do at home to keep your mouth a healthy one. We provide a complete range of dental services at 296 Lowell Street, Rt. 133 (with easy access off Rt. 93), including sealants, dentures, and implants. Phone 475-2431, 296 Lowell Street, Rt. 133, with easy access off Rt. 93. We have office hours Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues and Fri, and by appointment.

PS: By recording the depth to which the dentist is able to probe around teeth, the progression of gum disease can be charted.

MSL dedicates building as part of fifth anniversary

Massachusetts School of Law dedicated its 90,000-square-foot classroom building to Joseph and Julia Fishelson at an Oct. 9 ceremony. The school opened its doors with only 97 students five years ago. It has more than 800 this year.

The Fishelsons have been benefactors of MSL and major forces in the development of the school's mission.

According to a school spokesman, Mr. Fishelson was a child prodigy who graduated from the University of Wisconsin at age 18 and from its law school at 20. He was a combat paratroop captain who fought at Anzio and other places during World War II. After the war, he invented a new type of coffee pot - the Duralux - that became a best-selling item. He then took over the Akron Brass Manufacturing Co., which he built into the nation's leading manufacturer of fire-hose equipment.

Mr. Fishelson gave extensive amounts of money to his alma mater, the University of Wisconsin, to Harvard, to the Massachusetts School of Law, and to other charitable causes (often to individuals or graduate students who needed money). Mr. Fishelson was a founding trustee of MSL and served on its board of trustees until he died in 1991.

Julia Fishelson is a graduate of Vassar College. She has been active in civic and philanthropic causes, including assistance to abused women before this became a popular cause, planned parenthood, national organizations dedicated to the advancement of women in American society, an art center in her home town, a shelter workshop for mentally-handicapped persons and the American Israel Political Action Committee. She has served on the boards of many institutions and has contributed to numerous good causes, according to a spokesperson for the school.

Mrs. Fishelson, who attended the Oct. 9 dedication, serves on the board of trustees of the College of Wooster in her home town of Wooster, Ohio, and Massachusetts School of Law.

*Danger: Refers to the potential hazard of the chemicals or compounds. For example, EHS means an extremely hazardous substance that could immediately kill or cause serious injury, according to Everett Penney, Andover health director. Reactivity means the substance has the potential to be toxic or otherwise dangerous when combined with other compounds. Immediate refers to chemicals that cause an acute reaction, while delayed, or chronic, refers to those with long-term effects.

 Use discontinued in December 1992, and no longer on site.

redirecting the Superfund's original reactive approach of cleaning up hazardous waste sites to a proactive approach of controlling the storage and use of certain materials. Title III lists a number of chemicals and chemical compounds that are considered extremely hazardous substances and which, if present at or above a certain threshold, trigger a number of requirements.

Everett Penney, public health director in Andover, said 18 or 19 companies in town have at least one compound that requires reporting under the SARA law, but only about six of those have multiple compounds or a great amount of the compounds that require reporting.

"A lot of small companies may have just one compound that triggers the threshold," Mr. Penney said.

Title III requirements include:

- Section 302 - Reporting the presence of certain compounds to local emergency planning committees, which in Andover includes representatives of the health, police and fire departments, and state emergency response commissions;

- Section 303 - Coordinating emergency response plans with local emergency response committees;

- Section 304 - Immediate notification of the release of any such substances;

- Section 311 - Submitting reports on the compounds' hazardous components, including physical and chemical characteristics, fire and explosive hazard, reactivity and health hazard, and describing precautions for safe use and control measures.

- Section 312 - Reporting on the quantities of such chemicals and their locations on the property;

- Sect 313 - Completion of a Toxic Chemical Release Inventory estimating annual releases to the environment (air, water or land) for more than 300 specified chemicals.

Better communication

All of the SARA-report information is available to the public. Anyone interested in what a company in his or her neighborhood has on site can just visit the local Board of Health office and ask to view these reports.

The reporting has opened lines of communication among local police, fire and health departments, according to Mr. Penney. It also has helped encourage industries, especially those in "consumer sensitive" markets, to curb their use of hazardous compounds, he said.

"What they do environmentally is watched by their customers," Mr. Penney said. "What it's done is forced a lot of companies to get rid of the chemicals that are toxic and for which they have to go through all the reporting requirements."

For instance, Raytheon has substituted Terpene, a substance made from orange peels, for 1-1-1-Trichloroethylene, the hazardous compound the firm formerly used to wash electronic circuit boards. The company also used freon as a solvent. Both those products contain chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs), which destroy the ozone layer.

A protest a few years ago at a Raytheon stockholders' meeting by an Andover High School student against the company's use of solvents containing CFCs helped bring the problem to the company's attention, and ultimately make the switch to the Terpene, a naturally occurring cleaning agent, Mr. Penney said. Raytheon's total air emissions were greatly reduced last year as a result of that switch.

"Total air emissions were reduced by 50 percent, due primarily to the Raytheon initiative to eliminate the use of Trichloroethane and Freon 113," according to the 1992 SARA report from Stephen J. Laberis, manager of chemical operations at Raytheon's Andover plant.

Raytheon cut its air emissions 295,826 in 1991 to 144,628 last year. It has cut its total emissions from 1.7 million pounds in 1987 to 236,000 pounds last year.

Since at least 1987, Raytheon has made a concerted effort to target certain hazardous chemicals reduction and/or replacement, Mr. Laberis said this week. While some are replaced with substances not on the SARA list, others substitutions are made with chemicals that are still on the list but are "more manageable."

"We use sulfuric acid primarily for neutralizing wastes that we get from the printed circuit board manufacturing. So you use a hazardous chemical to do something good," Mr. Laberis said.

Potassium cyanide is used in a bath for electroplating at Raytheon, but that is also being phased out.

"We're going to be basically eliminating the use of cyanide," Mr. Laberis said.

Gillette Co., off Lowell Junction Road, has also reduced its chemical releases.

"The Andover manufacturing center has no SARA reportable emissions," Michelle Szyal, public relations official for Gillette, said this week.

And Gillette is taking the toxics out of its products.

"We have a goal to reduce chemical solvents in products by 50 percent by 1997," Ms. Szyal said.

Hewlett-Packard, 3000 Minuteman Road, completely eliminated the use of freon as a solvent last year, according to Kristine Kalajjian, environmental health and safety manager for the Andover plant.

"The majority of our freon we replaced with water," she said.

Nitrogen is an inert gas used in the manufacturing process at HP and is only a threat in high concentrations in an enclosed area, Ms. Kalajjian said. Sulfuric acid at the plant is in one-gallon containers used to neutralize the waste water, and is stored in specially built containment area, Ms. Kalajjian said.

Hewlett-Packard also has an ongoing chemical reduction program.

"We use the least toxic materials we can for any operation that we have," Ms. Kalajjian said.

According to the Title III reports for companies in Andover, Raytheon, Gillette and Hewlett-Packard are not unique in reducing their toxic use and emissions, Mr. Penney said.

"What they've shown is decreasing trends and numbers of chemicals," Mr. Penney said.

Companies have done this through substitution of chemicals, installation of air pollution control equipment and by changing their manufacturing processes.

Instead of washing a product off, they try not to get it dirty in the first place. Rather than having compounds evaporating into the air, they put them in smaller containers or cover them up.

Potential threat

Many of the compounds, such as the potassium cyanide and nitric and sulfuric acids, are not in themselves a great threat to public safety, but they can be a problem when combined with other chemicals, according to Mr. Penney.

"Potassium cyanide itself is not too bad, but if in contact with acids or bases, they release free cyanide, which is lethal," Mr. Penney said.

Sulfuric acid is the same. In contact with other chemicals it can release deadly gases, such as hydrogen sulfide, an asphyxiant.

No companies in town use or store Methyl Isocyanate, the gas that killed thousands of people in the Bhopal, India, disaster several years ago, according to Mr. Penney.

"But we probably have stuff like it," he said.

One of the most recent local chemical leaks occurred a couple of years ago when carbon dioxide leaked from a storage tank at Liquid Carbonics, just over the town line in Tewksbury. The gas displaces oxygen and five or six motorists felt faint and had to pull over after passing through a cloud that had settled on the road. Nobody was injured.

Prior to that there was a fire at GSF, a company that produced foam rubber in the Lowell Junction Road area, in which Toulene Dilsocyanate mixed with other chemicals, releasing a cyanide gas, Mr. Penney said.

"It was contained in the building but a few people were exposed and transported out of the building," he said.

GSF is now closed.

"We have probably a half dozen a year, a dozen a year at the most, releases from chemicals at the work-place site," Mr. Penney said.

Next frontier

The next major environmental target for industry regulation in Massachusetts will probably be VOCs, "volatile organic compounds," according to Mr. Laberis.

Alcohol-based compounds, paint thinners and the like used by industry contain VOCs, which contribute to low-level ozone, or smog.

"If it floats on water, it's usually a volatile organic compound and is linked to low-level ozone," Mr. Laberis said. "I think that's going to be the next frontier."

Companies here and across the state are already looking into reductions that can be made in this area, according to Ms. Szyal.

"It was just in a calm area out of the main current," said Detective Joe Hastings.

Women & Pre-Nuptial Agreements

If you are contemplating marriage or remarriage, you may be concerned that you will risk the eventual loss of some or all of your property or other assets in the event of a dissolution of your marriage by death or divorce. You may also be uneasy about raising these concerns with your prospective husband because you do not wish to seem unromantic or greedy. A properly negotiated and drafted pre-nuptial agreement can often address these very genuine concerns. The assistance of a lawyer in the negotiation and drafting process is essential if you wish your agreement to be valid and enforceable at some later time.

Two visitors coming Sunday to BrookRidge: music by LMX, followed by scholarly discussion

BrookRidge Community Church, located at West Elementary School on Beacon Street, will host two special visitors this Sunday, Oct. 24.

Lewis Miles Expedition (LMX), contemporary Christian rock recording artists, have played area coffeehouses and churches as well as concerts in Nashville with JAG, Julie Miller, Charlie Peacock and Degarmo & Key, and on WCVB for the Jerry Lewis Telethon promoting their album "No Turning Back." LMX is working on a new album and touring with David Coate from Turning Point.

"The community is invited to experience something contemporary that young people won't want to miss. Aren't you tired of fighting with your kids to get them to go to church? BrookRidge may be your answer. The format is unconventional and is appealing to a broad range of people," according to a church spokesperson.

Scott J. Hafemann, an associate professor of New Testament and director of the Greek program at Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary, will speak at 10:30 a.m. this week. He received his doctorate from Eberhard-Karls-Universität Tübingen, West Germany, and has conducted research at the Ecumenical Institute for Advanced Theological Research in Tantur, Israel, and Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Dr. Hafemann will speak at 10:30 a.m. on Sunday.

The members of Lewis Miles Expedition (LMX) are contemporary Christian rock recording artists.

Send church & temple news in each week.

DOWN THE YEARS

100 Years Ago:

Oct. 20, 1893

The violent wind last Saturday, and Sunday blew down the electric arc light at the corner of Main and Morton streets, and several chimneys were damaged.

A good old-fashioned corn husking is known by all who ever attended one to be a most enjoyable thing. Wednesday one of these occurred at the home of John Jenkins in the Holt District and those present say they had just "a fine time." Red ears figured prominently and after all the fun in the barn, an excellent supper was served, followed by a social time.

The Athletic Association of Phillips Academy will hold a handicap tournament at the running track to-morrow afternoon.

50 Years Ago:

October 21, 1943

Registration for War Ration Book 4 will take place in the public schools beginning Monday. Schools will be dismissed at noon each day in order that registration may be held from 2:00 to 8:00, Monday through Thursday. The schools selected as sites are Punchard, Shawshen, Bradlee, and West Center.

Two local Navy men, John Mooney, signalman 3c, of High street, and Lawrence Grant, radioman 3c, of School street, returned to Andover this week after seeing several months of constant action in the Sicilian and Italian operations. They served aboard a troop-carrying vessel which brought units of the British First Army into Sicily, and later Gen. Clark's now-famous Fifth, then a green and untried outfit, into Italy.

Roughly two out of three of the men sent for induction last Wednesday morning were accepted for service. Men accepted for the Army will leave for active service November 3, with Frank Merrill of 89 Pine street as leader; the Navy men will report according to individual orders they have received, most of them being scheduled to enter Newport this week. No selectees from the district were assigned to the Marine Corps.

Sunday morning the Andover company of the State Guard assembled at the Playstead for its usual two-hour drill period. Winter equipment was issued to the new men, and reissued to the older ones.

October 28, 1943

A 29-year-old Boston man was reported "resting comfortably" at Lawrence General hospital this noon following a spectacular accident in which he was hurled fully 20 feet in the air when struck by a passing motorist on Route 28, near Gould road, yesterday afternoon about 2:15.

A signal token of its activity in selling war stamps, a large "minute man" flag issued by the treasury department, is now whipping the breeze in front of the Andover Junior High School. The flag is presented only to schools and businesses which have 90 per cent of their personnel purchasing stamps and bonds regularly.

William A. Trow of Lowell street, Andover's leading authority on the early history of the town, was re-elected president of the Andover Historical society at its annual meeting last Saturday afternoon.

The Andover Guild will reopen for its new season Monday after an extensive redecorating program in which work has been done in the gymnasium, sitting room and other portions of the interior. Guild programs this year will be tied in with the war effort, all activities being planned with an emphasis on health and patriotism.

The new dramatic group being formed in Andover, which has had two preliminary meetings so far, will meet again Monday evening at 8:00 in Memorial Hall library. All persons interested in dramatics are urged to affiliate themselves with the society, at present the only such organization in town. Not only actors, but makeup workers, stage-managing and prop crews, and all other personnel necessary to the production of plays are invited to attend Monday's meeting.

25 Years Ago:

October 24, 1968

A wave of house breaks over the past three months has netted thieves thousands of dollars in money, television sets and jewelry, primarily, according to local police officials.

"Our statistics of growth need updating," subcommittee members William A. Doherty and William F. King declared Tuesday night when they presented their long range report to the rest of the school committee. Their conclusion: "Continued growth is inevitable" and "New school sites are needed urgently."

They showed that now in 1968, the school population has already reached the level which the 1965 Planning Board Report predicted it would reach in 1970, and said there was little doubt that by 1972, Andover schools would reach the population figure predicted for 1980.

An increased Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational-Technical high school at less cost to Andover than at present was explained to the selectmen at the school Monday night.

A local firm is undertaking the second expansion of its plant within recent years. Shawshen Rubber Company, Andover Street, Ballardvale, has under construction a $70,000 addition to its facility.

Rep. Paul Cronin stated today that the Andover High school hockey team can be granted State Department approval and assistance to participate in hockey games with Russia and European countries.

The selectmen Monday night paved the way for a new million-dollar industrial plant to be built off Dascomb Road near the Allied Chemical plant.

October 31, 1968

What's going on at the high school? Or, stated another way, what has the badly needed new high school building given Andover besides another badly needed building?

A couple of clues were dropped last week. High school administrators reporting to the school committee mentioned that the high school this year is offering 127 courses, and that class size ranging from eight to 28 pupils averages out at 17.4. This hits the school committee pupil-teacher ratio goal just about right on the button.

Andover, for the first time in its history, will make its selection of a President by electronics Tuesday, when 11,640 registered voters can go to the polls, punch cards, then await the results.

10 Years Ago:

October 20, 1983

Six teachers should be hired to solve overcrowding in Andover's elementary schools, the superintendent told the School Committee this week, but $20,000 worth of additional aide time may be a more realistic alternative.

With the state's approval, Andover will post new speed limit signs on Clark Road and River Street in Ballardvale. The Board of Selectmen approved the new speed limits Monday night.

Andover is one of three Massachusetts communities that will participate in a pilot benefit management program to be offered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield next year and the "innovative" plan will save Andover $155,000 next year, according to the town manager.

After reviewing "potentially hazardous" areas in neighborhoods along Lowell Street and Shawshen Road, the school department has added 76 new riders to its school buses. The result is one overcrowded bus on the West Elementary School route, but Transportation Coordinator Kathleen Casey Tuesday night told the School Committee she would begin planning new routes this week to eliminate that overcrowding.

Retired professor refutes town's birth date

By Neil Fater

Clifford Wrigley doesn't sleep much anymore. He is up most nights working on what he considers, and what if true, may very well be the biggest historical breakthrough ever uncovered in Andover. If what he believes is true, Clifford Wrigley will not only make history himself, he will forever change the accepted history of this town.

"I've been at this for over seven years and it's been constantly, night and day," he said of his research. "I would like to see the truth of history celebrated instead of the falsity."

Mr. Wrigley said he has research that suggests the first incorporation of an Andover settlement was in 1629, not in 1646 as stated on the town's seal, documents, and in all the history books. He said the 1646 settlement, which is in current North Andover, was actually the third white settlement in the area. In fact, according to Mr. Wrigley, the 1646 document celebrated as the first incorporation was an illegal attempt to take seven-eighths of the Andover settlement and give it to the town of Rowley. He will present his data, this Saturday, Oct. 23, at Old Town Hall on Main Street.

"It puzzles me why, while our historians acknowledge there were settlements here, none of them venture to research it," he said. "Maybe they suspected it would take seven years, as it has me."

Mr. Wrigley said that his statements have met with lukewarm reception at best, and that there has been some resistance from the ancestors of the 1646 settlement.

"They just don't want to know about this," he said. "I think it offends a lot of descendants from the 1646 settlement."

Mr. Wrigley said that in 1991 he brought his research to the Andover Historical Society, but did not receive as warm a welcome as he would have liked.

"They threw me out like the garbage," he said.

Barbara Thibault, current director of the Andover Historical Society, who was present at that meeting as education director, said that she remembered the committee as appreciating Mr. Wrigley's work but not feeling qualified to pass the type of judgment Mr. Wrigley may have wanted.

"The way I understood it was that the request was to put their stamp of approval on that research," she said. "No one had the expertise to say whether it was correct or not."

Ms. Thibault said that she had not seen or read any of Mr. Wrigley's research since that meeting two years ago, and said she welcomed the chance to receive his new discoveries. But she said she is not an expert on that time frame.

"There is always that question that there is something more, that someone was here before the 1640s," said Ms. Thibault. "I think it's an interesting debate and I welcome the chance to openly discuss it."

She did not know whether anyone from the Andover Historical Society would attend Mr. Wrigley's lecture.

Mr. Wrigley, 71 years old and a resident of Red Spring Road, is a retired art history teacher from Boston State College who was born in Ballardvale in 1922 and served in World War II. He first became aware of the possibility of an earlier incorporated town while he was researching the history of the town seal for a book to be published on Andover's history.

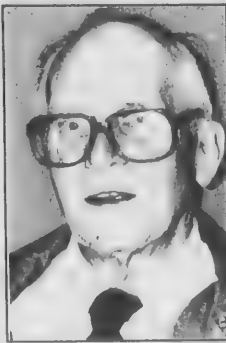

"I stumbled stupidly and without great intelligence or insight upon this first settlement of 1629 and (the second settlement) of 1634," he said. "We mistakenly celebrate this 1646 thing, which never happened."

The town does currently have plans for a 350th anniversary celebration to take place in 1996 and, according to Ms. Thibault, there is little chance that the festivities will be called off because of Mr. Wrigley's research.

"As representatives of the Historical Society we encourage research and primary research, but we have to be responsible," she said. "One has to go with popular history. They are expecting to celebrate."

Mr. Wrigley states in the transcript to his speech that "it is not my purpose to rain on the parade but to establish the truth about the most important primary events in our history... that are really worth celebrating."

After his meeting with the Andover Historical Society in 1991, Mr. Wrigley gave a lecture at the North Andover Historical Society on April 3, 1991. He said that while some, such as North Andover's Director Carol Machado, have supported his work as scholarly, there has been some resistance from

"I hate this and I hate getting up there and talking for an hour and a half. But the main thing is to establish the truth in our history and not to celebrate what never happened."

others.

"They want to be the first," he said. "They've been brought up believing they're the creme de la creme and they are not. But (proving) that was never my intention."

"It seems to me for 350 years that's what town people have believed and so the resistance is because there isn't enough evidence to support (his theories yet)," said Ms. Thibault.

According to Mr. Wrigley, in 1624 an explorer named Christopher Levett came down the Merrimack River on a scouting mission for the Council for New England. Looking for the best spot to establish a fur trading station and possible village, Mr. Levett chose an area by the so-called great cascade, known as Cochichewick. In 1629, one year before the incorporation of Boston, a group from Lincolnshire, England, associated with the Council for New England founded the first settlement at that spot, stated Mr. Wrigley.

"It never turned into much of a settlement," said Forbes Rockwell, a respected local historian, who was described by Ms. Thibault as having particular knowledge of the 17th century. He said there were no remains of such a settlement and that "in the town records I find no evidence of it."

However, Mr. Rockwell said he is not familiar enough with Mr. Wrigley's new research to comment on it in depth, and said he would most likely attend the Oct. 23 lecture.

According to Mr. Wrigley, William Wood and his Lincolnshire group founded what Mr. Wood referred to as Pentucket or Cochichewick by Shawshen at the same time they founded Lynn in an effort "to be a twin city on the model of the Dutch cities of" (New Amsterdam and Beverwyck, now Albany).

"He seems to lack great concrete, written proof that they came there and that they settled there," said Mr. Rockwell.

"It becomes difficult when you try to pin down where the people lived," he said. "It's logical that they would try to develop a fur trading station."

While most earlier historians believe that this Pentucket settlement was near the waterway flowing from Lake Cochichewick, Mr. Wrigley said that the settlement actually went, as the name "by Shawshen" suggests, from near the border of present-day Groveland and Haverhill over to Ferry Street in North Andover, not far from the South Lawrence border. He said that the great cascade or Cochichewick was essentially flooded over when a dam was built in the mid 1840s.

Mr. Wrigley also states that in his 1634 map of the interior of New England, William Wood marked Pentucket as an officially established or incorporated settlement, meaning that it had at least six houses and a Church/Town House.

"I don't know of anybody who has found proof of it," said Mr. Rockwell,

"I've gotten out all the old records. I'm pretty familiar with it and I find no confirmation. (But) I certainly wouldn't rule it out."

Again, Mr. Rockwell and members of historical societies have not yet seen all of Mr. Wrigley's new research.

Mr. Wrigley said the land was granted by Gov. Endicott and regranted by the '34-'35 General Court. He said a second settlement was founded in 1634 on Central Street in Andover where South Church is now located, and that the third settlement, which is commonly believed to be the first incorporation, was at the current junction of Academy Road and Osgood Street in North Andover.

Ironically enough, Mr. Wrigley claims that the settlement that is typically touted as the first incorporation of Andover was actually founded because Gov. John Winthrop tried to give most of the land area of the previous settlement to Rowley, an incorporated town associated with Mr. Winthrop's own Charter of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. He said that Mr. Winthrop's charter group and the Lincolnshire charter group were in a sense rivals for the same valuable land, and that after Gov. Winthrop was removed from the governorship for trying to take this land from an incorporated settlement, he became embittered.

"After Winthrop attempted to rip them off, he was demoted," said Mr. Wrigley. "I believe he was seeking revenge."

Mr. Wrigley said that the Rev. Abiel Abbott, one of Andover's earliest and most respected historians, did not fully comprehend the 1646 document related to this and erroneously labeled the 1646 settlement as the first incorporation. Future historians simply took Rev. Abbott's word for it and never bothered to look into it, according to Mr. Wrigley.

The book this information will be a part of is currently more than 800 pages, Mr. Wrigley said, and will cover many issues, including a biographical description of King Cutshamache, the native American who supposedly sold the land to white settlers; facts about the town seal and its creator; and information about how the settlements developed.

"I hate this and I hate getting up there and talking for an hour and a half," said Mr. Wrigley. "But the main thing is to establish the truth in our history and not to celebrate what never happened."

Letting people know about his research has become almost an obsession with Mr. Wrigley, and establishing what he believes to be the truth is his ultimate goal. With that in mind the 71-year-old retired college professor has decided to donate his estate to historical societies in the area, under the requirement that the funds be used to further research, in England if necessary, the work of his last seven years.

Architect shows plans for addition to AHS

By Neil Fater

In an effort to build consensus well before the item is subject to a vote at Town Meeting, designs for the expansion of Andover High School were presented to the School Committee and interested citizens at Tuesday night's meeting.

The additions and renovations to the school would add 60,000 square feet, the room needed for 400 more students and, according to School Committee member Mary Lyman, could cost $12-16 million.

The proposals and informational update were presented by David Soleau and David Croteau of Flansburgh & Associates, the architectural firm being used for the project, and Jim Marsh, acting chairman of the School Building Committee.

According to Mr. Marsh, the school was built for 1,300 students but it is projected that there will be more than 1,700 students at the High School by the turn of the century. In addition to the 400 extra seats, the improvements would bring the High School up to state standards in several deficient areas, such as laboratory space, and would attempt to cope with other building problems such as poor acoustics, according to Mr. Soleau.

"It's 27 years old and electrically heated," he said. "It's a worn out building. It served the town of Andover well, but it's" (getting old).

Mr. Marsh said the committee's goal was to "try to reprogram (the High School) so that it meets the needs of the future."

The School Committee will ask residents to allocate $500,000 in funds to pay for fiscal year 1994's architectural and construction costs. Committee members intend to present their building plans to the state by June 4, 1994, to assure that they will receive 100 percent reimbursement of interest under the current 60 percent reimbursement policy. It is believed that in 1995 the state will only cover 50 percent of the interest.

Mr. Marsh said that they had abandoned the earlier fieldhouse concept because Diane Price, head of the state School Building Bureau, had informed them that a contiguous approach to expansion was more likely to meet with state reimbursement.

"She told us, 'These are not good times for the state. There are a lot of schools which are overcrowded,'" said Mr. Marsh.

'It's 27 years old and electrically heated. It's a worn out building.'

Architect David Soleau

"She's not opposed to a swimming pool, but we must prove the town would use it," he said. "If there's enough encouragement for an ice hockey rink we should (look into) that; if there is encouragement for a swimming pool, we should include that."

Susan Dalton, School Committee chairwoman, said that a swimming pool would not be funded by the state at all and would add $2-3 million to the price tag.

Three proposals

The proposals have been pared down to three options, according to Mr. Croteau.

Option 1 would enlarge the existing gym space and build a new wing for science and other classrooms.

Option 2 would construct a new gymnasium, relocate the cafeteria and kitchen to the current gym, and put more classrooms between the current gym and main High School section. The science classrooms and labs would be moved to the current cafeteria and kitchen area under this option.

Key elements of Option 3 would be to use the existing cafeteria for art classrooms, and to have a new gymnasium constructed.

"We will continue to investigate more options," said Mr. Croteau.

The group has looked at expanding playing fields, improving locker rooms, and possibly putting parking around the building, and a playing field where the current parking lot is located.

The building committee will meet Tuesday, Oct. 26, with the Planning Board; Monday, Nov. 1, with the Board of Selectman; Tuesday, Nov. 2, with the Conservation Committee; and appear Nov. 8 at the Town Meeting.

Mr. Marsh responded favorably to a suggestion by committee member Susan Jenkins to make the options available for comments at Thursday's open house at the High School.

"We encourage the participation of the town," said Mr. Marsh. "We want to make it the most accommodating facility we can."

School Committee forum weighs inclusion

Andover schools," said David Silverstein, professor of business law at Suffolk University's School of Management, and a practicing attorney.

"You've all heard about the dumbing-down effect," said Mr. Silverstein. "It's a reality."

"Leave the High School doing what it's doing," said Jim Krasnoo, president of the PAC at Andover High School and one who has taught a combined-level history course at the High School, and in colleges and graduate schools. "It is working well in some instances, very well in some instances, and fairly well in other instances. But it is not working poorly at the high school level."

(At the High School, all core academic courses are grouped homogeneously, with some combining in Advanced Placement courses in levels 1, 2 and 3. All non-core courses at AHS are grouped heterogeneously: art, music, health, physical education, business and applied technology.)

Kathleen Hess, an administrator for a school system outside of Andover and who has two children in the Andover system, was one of those who spoke in support of non-leveling or heterogeneous grouping in the schools. She said heterogeneous grouping was a big contributor to building her younger son's self-esteem.

"Competition is a fact of life in this town," said Ms. Hess. "I think for most of us it's been a positive experience."

But she said she felt the best education comes from heterogeneous groups with instructional support.

The public input portion or forum at Tuesday's School Committee meeting was introduced by Dick Neal, assistant superintendent of schools, through an overview on the leveling and ability grouping material compiled for the committee. Mr. Neal said that the current debate had been on-going since the 1920s and that in recent years numerous studies had been presented criticizing the ability grouping method. Heterogeneous-sponsoring reports came under some fire from residents.

However, the most widely supported and echoed suggestion at Tuesday's forum was not to create different groupings but to set loftier goals.

"I don't think ability grouping is the problem, it's expectations," said Janet Bloom, a religious school principal. "If we keep lowering expectations ... we're not helping anybody."

In its report, the task force quoted former Chief Justice Earl Warren as saying separate education facilities created an inherent inequality which stemmed "from the stigma created by purposeful segregation, which generates a feeling of inferiority that may affect their hearts and minds in a way unlikely ever to be undone."

"Our philosophy in our family is we take responsibility," said Bill Josephson, an executive recruiter. "You can't succeed in life unless you fail many times."

"We're not just going to be competing with Americans, we're going to be competing with other countries for where the companies are going to be placed," he said. "I don't want a watered-down curriculum."

Dave Gossard, a professor, said that when his family first went through Bancroft School he was impressed with the building and the teachers, but was troubled because, "expectations seemed very low." He said a year abroad in which he was able to view foreign school systems only made his concern greater.

A different perspective was offered by AHS senior Cheryl Battles, the high school student government representative to the School Committee. She said that her mixed-level classes have a more relaxed atmosphere and that she is able to work with different students than in her leveled classes, but that both the brighter and the more challenged students suffered.

"It's more they've been segregated into the most motivated students and the less motivated students," she said. "I think if we eliminated leveling we'd be doing a" (disservice).

Mary Johnson, newly moved to Andover, joined Mr. Gossard in praising Andover teachers, saying that she has great faith in them, provided they are given small enough classes and enough support. But she said that Andover classrooms are already not heterogeneous because of the numbers who are currently going to private schools.

"There's a tremendous talent drain as kids leave the school," said Frank Orlando, a high school principal.

"I hope that (Andover) can keep it together because we moved her for the schools," said Ms. Johnson.

Some parents said that they felt a move toward full inclusion would increase the trend of some students leaving for private schools. Another concern was how such a change for inclusion would be financed.

"I submit we must stop all new initiatives until we think them through," said Lloyd Willey, head of the ad hoc finance committee for the schools. "We need to balance (what was presented in the 'Winners All' report by the Mainstream/Inclusion Task Force) with the stark reality of what really happens."

"Let's go slow and let's do what's right," he said.

In their discussion during the forum, many residents talked about their or their children's experience had been with leveling and ability-grouping. Members of the Mainstream/Inclusion Task Force also spoke of individual accounts at the Oct. 5 School Committee meeting.

"I think if we do this right it can be a win-win situation," said Paul Pakos, who works in management and has a daughter with special needs currently in the system.

"This is not a question of individual success stories," he said. "Success is not going to this school or that school, success is being tolerant of others. The success of the Andover school system will be a result of the integration of all the success stories. If we do it right it will be a win-win situation."

Working on mandated School Councils

By Neil Fater

The policy on School Councils was split into two sections Tuesday night, with the portion on decision-making separated from the remaining policy, in an effort to get the state-mandated bodies up and running.

The School Committee decided to separate the section dealing with decision-making from the rest of the package after Mark McQuillan, superintendent of schools, recommended significant changes to the decision-making structure.

A first pass had already been made on the whole policy, and only minor changes, if any, are typically made between a first and second pass, or vote, on a policy. The committee did approve a second pass on the rest of the policy, and a first pass on the reworked decision-making policy.

The new decision-making policy makes the principal of the school a voting member of the committee, but takes away his so-called veto power, or ability to avoid action on recommendations. Policy will be recommended by a majority vote. Dr. McQuillan said that such a change in the structure would avoid a long and protracted debate over the appropriate decision-making structure, presumably with the Andover Education Association, which is the teachers' union.

Committee members added a feature that would allow principals who were in the minority on a policy to put that in writing to the committee. Because principals are ultimately responsible for the output of the schools, committee members did not want the principal's opposition to be completely put aside by the majority decision of a council.

also said he likes the idea of a multi-use community center that would also serve as a senior center. He said he never said a new center would never be built.

"Seniors are privately pursuing their own thoughts about land," and are raising their own funds for construction of a center, Dr. Larsen said. They have also approached the town for assistance in finding and acquiring land for a center, he said.

Leaf pickups

Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, told selectmen the town has signed a contract with Vining Disposal Service Inc., the town's trash collection service, to pickup leaves at curbside.

Residents can put leaves at curbside on their regular trash collection day the weeks of Nov. 1, 8, 15 and 29. The leaf collection will not be run Thanksgiving week.

Leaves should be put in barrels, cardboard boxes, clear plastic bags or "anything that can be dumped easily in the back of a truck," Mr. Stapczynski said.

Leaves should not be put in black, green or other plastic bags that are not see-through. The clear plastic bags will be torn open right at the curb and the leaves emptied into the truck.

The town's leaf composting site on Bald Hill also opened for the season today, Thursday, Oct. 21.

Residents can dump leaves, grass clippings and shredded yard waste at the site 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday each week through Saturday, Dec. 4.

Local firm, PSI PowerServe, becomes partner of firm in Finland

PSI PowerServe, a division of Physical Sciences Inc. of Andover, has signed a partnership agreement with the Aerosol Technology Group of the Technical Research Center of Finland, Espoo, Finland. The objective of this agreement is to share consulting and testing capabilities to better serve the electric utility industry in the United States and Northern Europe.

PSI PowerServe has developed and applied a number of tools to help utilities minimize the cost of switching coals in response to emission control regulations. These tools include a software package called Slagging Advisor that can help utilities choose coals to minimize ash deposition and avoid costly decreases in boiler efficiency or availability.

Another capability is a continuous furnace exit temperature monitor called GASTEMP, which can be used to help utility boiler operators maintain effective boiler operation and minimum emission of nitrogen oxides by guiding sootblower operation.

By knowing where and when to clean ash deposits, boiler operators can prevent temperature excursions that result in high NOX, tube metal stresses, attemperator spray flows and elevated stack gas temperatures.

The result is money saved in reduced fuel and operating costs.

League plans 2 talks with Superintendent McQuillan

The League of Women Voters of Andover invites all townspeople concerned about Andover schools to informational meetings on Tuesday, Oct. 26, at noon at Joanne Marden's home, 10 Orchard St., and Thursday, Oct. 28, 7:30 p.m. at Ila Cox's home, 56 Central St.

Superintendent Mark McQuillan and a member of the Andover School Committee will be present at each meeting for discussions about ideas in progress.

Possible subjects are space and building issues, class size and the recently passed Massachusetts School Reform Act. There will be opportunities for sharing ideas and concerns.

Membership in the League is open to all women and men. For further information, call Jackie Kovacs at 470-3466.

Town real estate taxes due Nov. 1

The town of Andover has mailed real estate tax bills for the second quarter of Fiscal Year 1994. The bills are due Monday, Nov. 1. Taxes unpaid after that date are subject to interest charges of 14 percent.

The Town Hall Offices at 36 Bartlet St., are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tax payments can be left in the white mailbox with blue Town of Andover seal in front of town offices. If mailed, use the envelope provided and do not fold the bill. The tax collectors' office will be open Monday, Nov. 1, from 6 to 8 p.m. If you have not received your bill, or if you have any questions, call town offices at 470-3800.

Hazardous waste collection set

Andover will hold a hazardous-waste collection Saturday, Oct. 23.

Residents will have the opportunity to get rid of paints, oil, antifreeze, pesticides and other hazardous materials that have been cluttering their garages and basements since 1990, the last time the town funded a hazardous waste collection.

Collections were held for five years, from 1985 through 1990, three which were held jointly with North Andover. The cost ranged from $5,000 for the first collection to $30,000 for the last one. Since then, no funding has been available for a collection.

At April Town Meeting this year, voters approved $20,000 in the Health Department budget for a hazardous-waste collection.

The collection will be a one-day event, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at West Elementary School.

Paint and motor oil are big items for the collections.

What if the professor's right?

What if Clifford Wrigley is right? Just suppose his seven years of research into the first incorporation of an Andover settlement is correct? He now believes that Andover was incorporated in 1629, not in 1646 as we have always believed.

We admit that when the 71-year-old professor first approached the Townsmen staff we thought the whole story a bit odd. We tried to dismiss it, and him. It was a bit like what Barbara Thibault, director of the Andover Historical Society, said: "One has to go with popular history. They are expecting to celebrate."

But Mr. Wrigley is persistent. In our defense, he did first approach the newspaper on deadline so we said we'd be in touch the next day. Before we could call him, he called us. We said a reporter would call. A few hours later, when Mr. Wrigley had not heard from the reporter, he phoned the editor, "I haven't heard from the reporter."

You have to give the man credit, whether his research is correct or not. He doesn't particularly relish what he has turned up, but he knows he has "to establish the truth in our history and not celebrate what never happened."

His sudden appearance, even intrusion, into the news budget was mildly jarring. It has made us loosely use comparisons of how the community might react should the Messiah appear; or perhaps of how Christopher Columbus' community reacted when he said the world is round.

That is not to say that Clifford Wrigley is the Messiah, nor that his discovery, should it be true, is as earth shattering as the fact that the world is round.

It is simply to acknowledge that most of us dislike it when what we thought to be the truth might not be so, especially if it means altering plans, even town seals and celebrations, for that matter.

For now, Mr. Wrigley, we will try to keep our minds open and listen.

Making community center connections

By Perry Colmore

It's good to be reporting in a community that reads the newspaper and talks with you about it. I heard from a few people over the weekend who wanted to discuss the idea of having a community center, not just a senior center, here in Andover.

In case you are new here, there is a movement afoot to build a new senior center. The one we have is located at Whittier Court, in the bottom of the school administration building. Sharon Souza, executive director of the Council on Aging, which administers the senior center, says the seniors have outgrown their cramped quarters there. The seniors have been talking about raising funds to build a center.

However, during a recent meeting of the Our Town group of community leaders and administrators, Public Works Director Robert McQuade talked about his vision of building a community center that would include a senior center, but it would be much more than that.

Why not, he asked the interested group, include a swimming pool, a space for day care for seniors, a bowling alley, a space where veterans could meet and a teen center?

One Andover resident told me over the weekend that where she grew up, in Winnetka, Ill., the community center was the place to go, especially on Friday nights. The teens would be there dancing and some group would be swimming, and so on.

I had a talk with another Andover resident who wanted the paper to continue talking about such a center. He asked that a community center include space for the Little League to meet and also to store their equipment.

The same friend who wanted to make sure the center saved space for Little League activities and storage suggested that the facility also have a theater for the local performing groups.

The community center might help alleviate some of the isolation many feel in this part of the country. I am not enlightening you by saying that New England has a reputation of being made up of residents whose goal is to live in houses surrounded by lots of space. You know, the longer the driveway, the better the real estate.

The same friend who grew up in Winnetka has a theory about that. She wonders if residents of the Midwest live so far apart that they want to be connected in community centers. They welcome the fellowship opportunity. But New England is crowded - in offices, in some living spaces and certainly on its roads - and people feel squeezed into small spaces and therefore are looking for space and peace and quiet.

Interesting theory. I used to live at

Make demands for our bridges

Editor, Townsmen:

I am a teacher, artist and a preservationist who just happens to have an insatiable appetite for local history, architecture and objects of beauty. I see potential in things that the average person would dismiss as ugly, neglected and a blight on our landscape.

Whether creativity and an innate sense of aesthetics is genetically predetermined or takes years of training I am not sure, but I continue to teach with the hope that I will get people to open their eyes and see the environment in which we live and share. The lack of vision and creative thinking of people in positions to make a difference to the quality of our lives continues to amaze me.

The Horn Bridge and the Hartwell Abbott Bridge are just two more examples of how blind some people really are to "pride of place." Unwilling to go the extra steps to ensure quality in workmanship and aesthetic appearance will sentence all the citizens of Andover to continued blights on our landscape and assaults to our eyes. Andover's standards have always been higher than those dictated by the state and well they should be. State codes and cost-effective budgets can and have been adapted in the past to ensure preservation and restoration of other landmarks through out the state. You get what you demand.

The Charles River Bridge in Charlestown is an example of a historic structure where aesthetic beauty apparently took precedence over code requirements. The entire superstructure of the bridge was replaced with concrete and steel. The historic granite facade was removed, cleaned and reinstalled. Nowhere on this bridge will you find battleship gray paint, chain-link fencing or metal highway fenders. It is an impressive structure that will delight all "Freedom Trail" hikers for years to come. This bridge is a symbol and gateway to the Charlestown neighborhood. A vision and a promise that the best is yet to come.

We have much to be proud of in Andover. We have some of the best rehabilitation and restoration projects that were done in the state in the last 15 years: The Andover Commons, Bradlee School, Ballardvale Mills complex, Brickstone Square, Barnard Block, East Junior High/Town Offices, Old Town House and Hall, The Park and bandstand, Shawsheen and Doherty schools, West Parish Church, South Church, McKeen Memorial Hall, Musgrove Building, Memorial Hall in the library, AVIS/West Parish Meadow and several buildings on the campus of Phillips Academy.

All the people connected with these projects were able to visualize the end product. They did it creatively within code requirements, preserving and protecting the integrity of the property and defending it against the "nay" sayers. Consider the fact that each of the above properties were at one time considered too expensive or ugly to restore. Some of these landmarks were said not to be cost effective, should be demolished and the land redeveloped. You begin to see the importance of having creative people in positions to help guide those too blind to see a site or buildings full potential.

The 148-year-old "Horn" bridge granite should be restored to its natural condition and the steel work painted black. The Hartwell Abbott Bridge needs a total redesign on the side barriers. Having four different barriers on the same bridge destroys the aesthetic continuity of the approach. At the very least the chainlink and guard rails should be replaced with the same rail fencing that is used on the bridge itself. One fence will do the same job as four, simplify the design and give the bridge a uniform appearance.

I can only imagine how the new bridge on Stevens Street will look when completed. If the bridges on Central Street are the best jobs the MBTA and the state Highway Department can do, then it is up to the people of Andover to demand a better design for the Stevens Street crossing.

Nothing gets built in this town without plan approval and a design review. We made a mistake that hopefully most residents are not willing to live with. It will cost money to rectify the situation and should be shared equally by all who are responsible. We have six more bridges in town that will undoubtedly need repair and restoration in the future. Four of them span the Shawsheen River and two are railroad underpasses in the Shawsheen Village district. It is unlikely that these would meet the same fate as the Abbott or "Horn" bridge because they fall within a historic district. These districts, however, do not protect them completely and now that a precedence has been set we must keep a watchful eye and demand the best possible design.

The ignorance of a few people . . .

Editor, Townsmen:

I was surprised and relieved last week to find that someone else in Andover, namely Leah Bonner, took exception to Helen Taylor's ideas on condom distribution. So it was with apprehension that I opened this week's Townsmen to view the inevitable rebuttals, which came from Lorraine Roche and Helen Taylor. I now feel compelled to share a few ideas of my own.

First, I would like to address the survey that stated that "a full 20 percent more students would engage in sexual activity if condoms were to be available at school." I must confess that I did not know this survey existed because, like hundreds of other students at Andover High, I was not asked to participate. One survey I did participate in, however, was the Teen Center survey, through which it was determined that a large percentage of students would like bungee jumping at Andover High. I think I have made my point about school surveys.

Another percentage that is bothering me is the mysterious 15-percent failure rate. Having read the Consumer Reports issue on condoms, where the different brands tested exhibited a wide range of effectiveness, the idea of one set failure rate seems naive at best.

In conclusion, I cannot believe that bestowing a condom upon someone will automatically make that person bold enough to seek out someone to have sexual intercourse with - but, then again, I also find it hard to believe that my generation's Black Plague is being allowed to spread because of the ignorance of a few individuals.

And it is.

Homework edit wasn't encouraging

Editor, Townsmen:

I have a different response to the homework honor roll at Doherty, ("90 percent is not enough," Oct. 14 editorial, page 34). At the open house in late September, as the parent of a sixth-grader, I was impressed with the feeling of flexibility I sensed among the staff. One of the teachers had attended a conference this summer where she learned about the homework honor roll. She brought the idea back and it was implemented right away. This response showed me a school that's the end of a longish driveway. That was fine, but when I moved to Andover I had a feeling of wanting to live downtown. In fact, when I looked at houses and apartments in this community, I could feel when the "looking radius" became too large and I would turn around and head back for the center of town.

Once I moved here, downtown, I realized what I had missed by living in more isolated parts of communities. Here I felt connected, and I am glad to know at least by sight many of my neighbors. Downtown people look one another in the eye and say good morning, how's your dog, lovely day, how's your mother.

A community center could do some of that for us. There the seniors could be near the teens and the babies in a day care center. I envision a place where Little League players and coaches are picking up bats and balls while an exercise class is using the pool, which the high school swim team will use later. A class in wreath making is in progress down the hall, a meeting of Habitat for Humanity is scheduled to begin soon, and the Andover Theatre Company is rehearsing its latest production, which will be performed next week in the community center theater.

And so on. The Department of Community Services might have offices there. And there would be a true drop-in center for teens.

Like the idea? Let us know.

open to new ideas.

From what I know of current thinking about middle schools, Doherty is taking all the recommended approaches, including team teaching and creating a sense of community. I came home from the open house energized, glad that my son is attending Doherty.

If the Townsmen considers itself a watchdog on educational affairs, it would do better to address the broader issues, as it did a few weeks ago, in an encouraging editorial on the importance of reading.

Ditto homework

Editor,

Townsmen:

As a Doherty Middle School parent, I applaud the new Doherty honor roll for homework concept. The homework honor roll is one portion of a multifaceted initiative set forth this year.

Along with the honor roll, the implementation of assignment notebooks and the reinforcement by teachers gives students an edge toward forming improved study habits and organizational skills.

The homework honor roll is designed to boost self-esteem and breed success, offering our students a goal that is attainable by all.

Editor,
Townsmen:

I am an eighth-grade representative on the student council at Doherty Middle School writing on behalf of many of my classmates regarding last week's (editorial) "90 percent is not enough."

Ninety percent, as opposed to 100 percent, gives students a chance to make homework honor roll if they were unable to solve a problem in math or did not understand something in their social studies assignment.

I agree that it is not the school's fault for sending home too much homework and reassessing the assignment load is not the way to go. It is simply the fact that students today are extremely busy and are sometimes unable to complete all homework assigned. After all, not answering one problem in math should not keep us from being recognized. The average student wakes up at 6 a.m. and is in school from 7:30 to 2:05 p.m.

Following school we play sports, attend meetings or spend time with friends. After getting home as late as 6 p.m. and eating dinner, it is not always possible to be "perfect" with as many as seven assignments. Now you may say that we should cut down on things such as sports, committees or being with friends, but if you seriously believe that, then you're living in a dream world because we need time to develop more than just our academic talents.

The reason the homework honor roll was started was to encourage students to do more homework. The new system is a reward for all of our hard work. The homework honor roll has become a goal many of my fellow students and I would like to achieve.

I would like to conclude this letter saying, "nobody's perfect," but the homework honor roll gives us something to reach for.

Family supports the warmth of inclusion

Editor, Townsmen:

A year ago we left the Andover public schools to participate in the Ipswich public schools under Choice. We left in search of a public school which could, and would, educate our educationally-challenged child, while providing our brighter children a comparable education to the Andover schools.

In comparing curriculum, we did not consider the role of inclusion nor its effect on our children. (The school we enrolled our children in is a model of Inclusion.)

We were, therefore, unprepared for the effect that inclusion would have on our children. In choosing to educate its most challenged and most gifted children in the same classrooms, this school has sent our children a powerful message. Our children understand that each child, no matter how gifted or challenged, is an important educable member of the school community. They participate in an excellent, more-expansive curriculum which allows for greater academic and social development in multiple areas.

Within a cohesive community where many children receive assistance, whether 766 or funded ELP (gifted and talented), there is little or no stigma attached to the academic and social differences present in the school community.

The warmth of inclusion has rekindled the fires of motivation and self confidence in our challenged child, to the inclusive educational benefit of her bright siblings. While Inclusion has offered each child distinctive individual benefits, the overall effect has been unparalleled enthusiasm for school and learning.

We applaud Andover's efforts to implement Inclusion and hope that the town will look beyond the legal mandate and extend Inclusion to its most gifted students.

Andover Community Theatre has new officers, begins 22nd season

Andover Community Theatre has launched its 22nd season by electing new officers and revamping its bylaws. Members of its 1994 board are Dana Gum-Bissett, president; Steve Bissett, vice president; Jude Jennings, secretary; Gail Ralston, treasurer; Jane Vondell, properties; Caroline Chapell, box office; Sue O'Neill, publicity; and Barbara Bourgeois, membership. Juree James will edit the ACT newsletter.

According to Ms. Gum-Bissett, one of ACT's first priorities for the year will be to try to find a home. "We're looking for a place we can fix up," she says. "It wouldn't have to be extremely large, but we'd like to be able to store our equipment in it and build a performance space." Because of the not-for-profit nature of ACT, she adds, rent would have to be minimal or reduced in exchange for maintaining and securing the building.

Presently, ACT stages its productions in local school auditoriums and Old Town Hall. Volunteers construct sets in borrowed or rented warehouse space and members store properties, costumes and set materials in their basements, attics and sheds. The company is considering a number of projects for 1994, but will welcome suggestions. ACT is also seeking directors, producers and set designers. To volunteer, or for membership information, call 474-1014.

The Menagerie Theatre production, which showcases darkly humorous songs from such Broadway plays as Phantom of the Opera, Assassins, Little Shop of Horrors and Sweeney Todd, features an 11-member cast, including some from Andover. Menagerie, a community theater company based in Bradford, has a hotline; call 373-1999.

Richard Graber, one of eight local artists and collectors whose works are on display at Andover Books and Prints on Park Street through Dec. 31, will receive special attention at the shop's "Words on Stone Weekend." During the past six years, he has photographed a large rock by Route 125; he has snapped its changing paint-coat of slogans, and has photographed it in day and night lighting and in different seasons. This weekend, when AB&P will feature stone-carving demonstrations by Tari Swenson and Chris Curtis of Stone, Vermont, Graber's rock photos will be displayed.

Since 1962, he has recorded people, places and day-to-day life in Andover. One piece he will display is a 12-foot panoramic picture of Main Street.

Bus tour looks at the Andover area with an 18th-century perspective

An 18th-century Andover bus tour, co-sponsored by the Andover and North Andover Historical societies, is scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 7, at 1 p.m. The tour will take the old roads and byways through the original Andover, now divided among Andover, North Andover and South Lawrence.

Beginning at the Johnson Cottage of the North Andover Historical Society at 153 Academy Road, tour leader Warren Lewis plans to stop on Osgood Street first to walk around the Parson Barnard House, circa 1715, and the Phillips Manse, circa 1752.

Continuing through historic

North Parish to the Frye family neighborhood along Mill and Chestnut streets, the Enoch and James Frye houses will be visited.

Crossing the boundary line between old North Parish and South Parish, and following the stagecoach roads, the tour will pass by the Jenkins homes and on to the former Ballard and Blunt farms.

Briefly stopping at the Chandler-Bixby-Abbot House, the building styles of the late 17th and 18th centuries will be illustrated.

Then on to River Road, where Mr. Lewis will point out how early descendants of the Benjamin Abbot family built their farmsteads along the Merimack.

Heading east following the river to Lake Cochichewick, the tour will pass by the Parker-Bailey House, circa 1769, at the intersection of Andover and Parker streets.

This tour is part of a series of tours designed to tell the story of early settlement in Andover, North Andover and South Lawrence.

Last year, the 17th century was explored and next year's plans are to look at the 19th-century sites. By the town's 350th anniversary, a sampler tour is planned.

The tour lasts four hours and costs $15.

Call either historical society (475-2236 or 686-4035) to register as seating is limited.

SPORTS

Late rally not enough to lift AHS over Haverhill

The miseries continued to mount for the Andover High varsity football team as the Golden Warrior gridders late rally against Haverhill went unrewarded in a 26-20 Merrimack Valley Conference defeat at Haverhill Stadium.

Things should improve tomorrow night, however, when Dracut rolls into town for a 7 p.m. contest at Eugene V. Lovely Field.

The Middies are 1-5-0 and have been outscored 207-48 in those six games.

Coach Dick Collins' squad made a spirited third quarter comeback against Haverhill, almost erasing a 26-7 deficit before being stymied.

It was the first time Haverhill has beaten Andover on the gridiron since 1982, with the Warriors winning every year since then except 1988 when the rivals battled to a 14-14 tie.

Andover has lost four straight for the first time in more than a decade, although the 1984 squad went 0-4-1 in its final five games including a three-game slid to end the season.

The loss of two-way standout and Captain Toby Guzowski with an elbow injury in the first half should have hampered the Golden Warriors, but they appeared to use his absence as a rallying point.

The Hillies (2-4-0) piled up close to 300 yards offense in the first half, moving out to a 26-7 lead, but then withered in the second half as the Warriors came on strong with 162 yards and the only two touchdowns of the last two quarters.

Adam Theoharis and Brian Tellier were a devastating 1-2 ground punch for Haverhill, combining for just under 300 yards on the ground and scoring two touchdowns apiece.

Theoharis had scoring runs of 26 and 82 yards in the first half, while Tellier connected on a 60-yard jaunt and one-yard plunge.

Andover TDs came from quarterback Jeff Brammer, who returned to the lineup after a shoulder injury sidelined him against Methuen, fullback Dana McCann and halfback Dave Jorgenson.

Brammer, still not 100 percent, notched his first touchdown of the season on a one-yard sneak early in the second period, making it 14-7 at the time.

McCann, who was pressed into service when Guzowski went down, knifed over from the two in the third period.

Jorgenson added his second TD of the campaign on a seven yard run late in the third stanza.

Freshman placekicker Brian Tisbert toed his fourth and fifth conversions of the season.

Andover chalked up 12 first downs and over 200 well-balanced yards from scrimmage, but a pair of lost fumbles and an interception didn't help the cause.

Haverhill had over 300 yards rushing.

The 20 points snapped one of the longest scoring droughts in recent AHS football history, the Warriors having been blanked in the previous two games against Tewksbury (14-0) and Methuen (28-0) after netting just one late TD in the Lowell game.

The biggest problem Dracut will present will be in the person of senior running back Scott Camarda, a first-class back trapped on a young, inexperienced team.

Camarda leads the Middies in virtually every offensive category, including points (30) and yards rushing (504).

Camarda has rushed for over 100 yards in three games.

Rival head coaches Ed Murphy and Dick Collins have 86 years of experience between them.

Both are Mass. State Coaches Hall of Fame members, Murphy currently in his 48th consecutive season at Dracut and Collins in his 34th year at Andover and 38th overall.

The Golden Warriors walked Dracut 42-6 last fall and have won the last eight games between the two teams. They did not play each other in 1988 when the Middies made their one and only Eastern Mass. Division 2 Super Bowl appearance, rocking Beverly 23-6 in that game.

Andover girls win Columbus Day Invitational Tournament

After 12 years, Andover girls finally won the championship at the tough Columbus Day Invitational Tournament.

Two of the fastest girls on the Andover Junior Warriors Under 14 Division team, Victoria Costello and Barbara Contos, owned the sidelines. Julie Litzenberger and Charlotte Muller controlled the center of the field with Charlotte showing her "cool" under attack. Viki Pierce played her best, not only winning nearly every ball in her area but, also, scoring two goals from her right fullback position including the winning score against Dover.

The defense kept the opponents bottled up in their end so Julie Viola was able to rest during most of the play. However, Julie earned her stripes for confidence and aggressiveness in the sudden death shoot-out in the final round of play, stopping hard shot after hard shot to secure the championship.

Noelle Blank, Sarah Muller, and Jessie Smith provided the goals while Courtney Barron, Kim McKew, Megan Roth, Kristi Keller, Laura Orlando, and Brenna O'Connor provided the passes to set up the scores. Injured Bethany Caruso was at each game to cheer on the team.

Mites receive instruction from Olympic and NHL stars

Mike Eruzione, 1980 Olympic gold medal team captain, and Chris Nilan, former NHL star, gave personal instruction to the entire Mite division of the Andover Hockey Association.

"It was an opportunity of a lifetime for the kids," said Bob Barry, local John Hancock representative of the Merrimack Valley Agency, who coordinated the event.

"Mike and Chris stayed late and made sure every person in the rink had a picture taken or a stick or hat autographed. The kids really came out energized."

David McCarthy was one of the Andover coaches whose effort helped make the evening a success.

AHS girls swim team's first-place finishes weren't sufficient

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High girls swim team placed first in half the events, six of 12, but couldn't match Chelmsford's depth en route to a 104-82 Merrimack Valley Conference dual meet loss to the visiting Lady Lions at the Greater Lawrence Technical School pool.

The setback brought Coach Marilyn Fitzgerald's AHS natators into this busy two-meet week with records of 3-3-0 overall and 2-2-0 in MVC duals.

In other recent meets the Lady Warriors dropped a 121-65 league decision to powerful Haverhill, and then bounced back to topple non-league Westford Academy, 108-78.

Andover faced undefeated league leader Nashua High earlier this week, and tomorrow begins an MVC season-ending string of three straight duals it should win when the locals travel to the Shawsheen Tech pool to battle Billerica High (3:30 p.m.).

The league campaign concludes next week with a home meet against Lawrence (Tuesday) and away meet at Methuen (Friday).

Junior Tracie Grant and sophomore Diana Liberty won two events each and swam the final two legs, respectively, on the victorious 200 freestyle relay team that posted a State Meet qualifying time of 1:49.54.

The latter effort means that all three AHS top relay teams have qualified for the States.

Miss Grant placed first in the 200 yard freestyle (2:09.88) and 100 butterfly (1:03.06), while Miss Liberty remained undefeated in dual meets by capturing the 200 IM (2:18.58) and 500 freestyle (5:30.52).

Senior Co-Captain Mindy Fox and freshman Meghan Donahue joined Grant and Liberty on the 200 free relay squad, and Fox also won the 100 yard breaststroke in 1:16.81.

The lone individual second place finish went to senior Carrie Moran with a personal-best 1:11.38 in the 100 backstroke, while the 200 medley relay quartet of Grant, Fox, Liberty and senior Megan Miller was a runner-up in 2:04.31.

Junior Joan Sunderland led the Andover one-meter divers with a third place finish, scoring 157.90, while freshman Nicole Carpenter was fourth (149.00) and senior veteran Kerry Brady sixth (137.00).

Carpentier's total was her second straight over 140 points, leaving her one meet shy of becoming the fourth Andover diver to qualify for the Sectionals.

Other thirds for the Lady Warriors went to Mindy Fox in the 200 individual medley (2:33.38), senior Kate Lennon in the 50 freestyle (28.50), Megan Miller in the 100 freestyle (1:02.77), senior Ronit Shteiher in the 100 breaststroke (1:17.00), and Meghan Donahue who qualified for Sectionals while competing in the 100 backstroke (1:12.31) for the first time.

The 200 free relay foursome of sophomore Nicole DeLisio, senior Mandy Wilson, sophomore Lindsay Bates and senior Co-Captain Whitney Bates was third (1:58.50), along with the 400 free relay crew of Megan Miller, Whitney Bates, Carrie Moran and Meghan Donahue (4:19.88).

Adding fourths were Lindsay Bates in the 50 free (29.00), Megna Donahue in the 100 fly (1:08.56) and Whitney Bates in the 100 free (1:03.88).

Fifth-place points were garnered by Whitney Bates in the 200 free (2:22.31), Mandy Wilson in the 50 free (29.00, judge's decision) and 500 breast (1:21.00), Lindsay Bates in the 100 free (1:04.57), junior Kristen Lawrence with a personal-best 6:38.38 in the 500 free and Megan Miller in the 100 back (1:18.38).

Finishing sixth were junior Emily Winters in the 200 free (2:22.81), sophomore Molly O'Connell in the 200 IM (2:56.44) and sophomore Elly Smith with a personal-best 6:42.25 in the 500 free.

The winners placed first in 10 of the 12 events, once again sweeping the one-meter diving competition and also taking the top three places in the 100 freestyle.

Senior Captain Mindy Fox continued her outstanding start with victories in the 200 individual medley, a personal-best 2:32.45, and the 100 free (1:03.30).

She also anchored the winning 200 medley relay team with Tracie Grant, senior Ronit Shteiher and Diana Liberty, the quartet finishing in a State Meet qualifying time of 2:02.81.

Fox completed her outstanding day by joining freshman Meghan Donahue, Grant and Liberty on the first place 400 free relay team (4:04.65).

"Mindy has a tremendous work ethic and it's really paying off in her performances this year," noted Coach Fitzgerald.

Miss Liberty and Miss Grant were their usual superb selves, State champ Liberty winning the 500 freestyle (5:28.87) and lowering her State Meet qualifying time in the 200 free (2:04.30) while junior standout Grant captured the 100 butterfly (1:04.00) and 100 backstroke (1:07.77).

Andover's top three divers all qualified for the Sectionals with their scores against NDA, junior Lisa Cincotta the winner with 179.95 points, junior Joan Sunderland second at 166.50 and senior Kerry Brady third at 160.70.

Ronit Shteiher also contributed an individual first place in the 100 breaststroke (1:17.97).

Completing the sweep of the 100 free were senior Megan Miller in a personal-best 1:03.84 and Captain Whitney Bates in a personal-best 1:04.17.

Earning seconds were Miller in the 50 free (28.03), Meghan Donahue in the 200 free (2:14.95) and 100 fly (1:08.07), and senior Mandy Wilson in the 100 breaststroke (1:21.26).

The other individual third place finisher was senior Carrie Moran in the 200 IM (2:50.25).

Andover was third in all three relays as well. The 200 medley team consisted of Moran, Wilson, sophomore Heather Vanderheiden and Megan Miller (2:09.09), the 200 free squad was comprised of Shteiher, Whitney Bates, Miller and Donahue (1:56.42), and the 400 free quartet included senior Jenn Rando, junior Emily Winters, Carrie Moran and senior Kate Lennon (4:36.17).

Taking fourth places were Lennon in the 50 free (28.81), junior Kristen Lawrence in the 500 free (6:43.09) and Moran in the 100 back (1:14.09).

Rounding out the pointscorers in fifth were Jenn Rando in the 200 free (personal-best 2:25.27), sophomore Lindsay Bates in the 50 free (29.51), Vanderheiden in the 100 fly (personal-best 1:18.77), Winters in the 500 free (6:45.32), Lennon in the 100 back (1:17.27) and Whitney Bates in the 100 breaststroke (1:28.33).

"I knew the meet would be close, but Reading surprised me with its strength in diving," said Coach Fitzgerald. "I had counted on us placing first in diving, which would have given us the victory, but Reading had excellent depth."

The Lady Warriors managed five first place finishes in the 12 events.

Undefeated Diana Liberty was AHS' lone double winner, taking the 500 freestyle in 5:32.04 and the 200 free in 2:06.79.

Tracie Grant captured the 100 backstroke (1:08.52) and was second in the 200 IM (2:26.27), while Mindy Fox also had a first in the 100 freestyle (1:02.22) and a second in the 100 breaststroke with her 1:16.71 a personal-best by four seconds.

Andover's other victory came in the 200 medley relay where Grant, Ronit Shteiher, Liberty and Kate Lennon touched in 2:04.20.

In the one-meter diving, Kefy Brady was runner-up (159.65 points), Lisa Cincotta third (151.10) and Joan Sunderland fifth (144.35).

Megan Donahue's personal-best 1:07.72 in the 100 butterfly was good enough for second, and she was also part of two AHS relay teams that placed in the runner-up spot.

Mandy Wilson, Fox, Donahue and Lennon were second in the 200 free relay (1:55.32), while Donahue, Megan Miller, Grant and Liberty were bridesmaids in the 400 free relay (4:05.11).

Donahue completed a strong afternoon with a third in the 200 free (2:14.26), Ronit Shteiher was third in the 100 breaststroke (1:17.90), and Carrie Moran third in both the 100 free (1:05.16) and 100 backstroke (1:14.59).

Soccer coach: 'It's been a very strange and trying season'

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High girls soccer team continues to hang tough as the injuries keep mounting, the Lady Warriors blanking Dracut 3-0 earlier this week after four key players went down in a 3-0 loss to Billerica several days earlier.

"It's been a very strange and trying season," admitted AHS Coach Dick Loschi. "We've been inundated with injuries, more than any team deserves, including three torn ACL's (knee ligaments), one twisted ACL and the only ankle injury suffered by an Andover athlete this fall.

"But the girls have remained upbeat through it all. I met with the seniors this week and basically told them to suck it up, play with pride and work through the adversity," said Loschi.

Andover, 5-5-1 overall and 4-3-1 in the Merrimack Valley Conference following the Dracut win, must earn 10 of a possible 14 points in its final seven games to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the ninth straight year.

"We're moving into a five-game homestand," noted Loschi, whose team played nine of its first 11 games on the road. "It's nice to be home but it's still a very tough stretch with Arlington, Lowell (8-2-3), Masconomet, Wilmington (6-2-3), Billerica (10-0-2) and North Andover to play."

That rugged schedule began Tuesday night when Arlington came to town, and continues today against Lowell and Saturday night with another non-leaguer versus Masco (7 p.m., Lovely Field).

Coach Loschi still owns a very impressive 123-31-19 overall record.

Injury update

"We carried four people off in the Billerica game," said Loschi. "It was an aggressive game, but not a rough one."

Senior defender Rachel Buonopane suffered a twisted ankle, sophomore defender Sue Cookson aggravated an upper thigh contusion, junior goalkeeper Kim Kelley played just five minutes into the second half before sustaining a badly-bruised hand which at first was thought to be a broken knuckle, and sophomore defender Christine Contos had a leg injury.

All but the Kelley injury occurred in the first half. None of the girls played in the next game against Dracut, while Contos was listed as probable and Cookson as possible (after jogging at practice on Monday) for the Arlington game.

"Of the 23 players on our varsity roster, nine have had injuries serious enough to keep them out of the lineup for at least one game," said Coach Loschi.

Billerica 3 - Andover 0

The Lady Warriors were shut out for the third straight game, the first time it's happened in years, and beaten at home by an MVC opponent for the first time since they joined the league eight years ago.

The loss also kept Andover from snapping Billerica's three-year regular-season undefeated streak, which was extended to 51 games (46-0-5).

Scoring single goals for the Indians were Tinna Carrabba (her 15th), Diana Dempsey and freshman Wendy Boudreau, while assists were credited to Tara Martorella and Julie Mitza.

Sophomore Meghan Lynch made 13 saves for AHS as the locals were outshot 16-4 by Billerica.

Coach Loschi cited the strong play of senior defender Angie Roux and senior midfielder Robin Lapointe.

Andover and Billerica have combined to win seven straight MVC girls soccer titles, the Lady Warriors capturing the championship five consecutive years (1986-90) before Billerica won the past two years (1991 and 1992).

Andover 3 - Dracut 0

Sophomore forward Randi Spiegel's fourth goal of the season was the only one needed, as she made it 1-0 by converting a Shannon Lee pass at 12:59 of the first half.

Senior forward Amy Baggeroer, in her first game back after suffering a knee injury (twisted ACL) two weeks ago, made up for lost time by adding both Andover insurance goals in the second half.

Junior midfielder Jen Griffin assisted on the first at the 21-minute mark, and two minutes later Baggeroer connected again unassisted.

Sophomore goalkeeper Meghan Lynch made three saves en route to her second shutout and the team's third overall.

Solid performances were contributed by sophomore midfielder Liz Salvia, Griffin at midfield, and senior midfielder Alison Georgian who returned after missing three weeks with a swollen calf injury.

(Earlier Games)

Winchester 2 - Andover 0

Junior Kim Kelley was superb in net with 14 saves, but the Middlesex League Sachems (9-1-0 record) broke a scoreless struggle with two quick goals early in the second half.

Playing well defensively for AHS were senior Rachel Buonopane and sophomore Liz Salvia, while aggressive midfield work was added by junior Jen Griffin, senior Sarah Paskowsky and senior Katie Ryan.

Andover 0 - Chelmsford 0

Sophomore Meghan Lynch made five saves en route to the team's second shutout, and her first solo whitewash as a varsity goalkeeper.

However, Chelmsford (1-8-1) netminder Karen DiGiovanni was also sharp with 13 saves.

Senior forward Crissy Donovan had a half-dozen shots on goal in a strong offensive performance, while also cited for outstanding play were sophomore midfielder Susan Ashlock and senior middle Robin Lapointe.

Andover 2 - Tewksbury 1

Sanity was restored when the Lady Warriors scored twice in the final 25 minutes to overcome a spirited upset attempt by the Redgals.

Tewksbury's Wendy Johanan snapped a scoreless tie six minutes into the second half, but Sue Cookson's team-high fifth goal of the season on a direct kick tied it nine minutes later.

Captain Amy Pierre netted the game-winner at 35:30, with 4:30 to play, when she controlled a head ball from Cookson on the left wing and blistered a 27-yard bullet into the upper far-side corner.

"We played Tewksbury's style of kick ball in the first half," explained Coach Loschi. "The second half was more of a control game. It was good to see our girls dig down and fight back. Maybe we turned the corner with this win."

Junior goalkeeper Kim Kelley went the distance and made eight saves for the Lady Warriors, while Holly Perrin had 10 stops for Tewksbury.

Lowell 4 - Andover 3

Sophomore midfielder Liz Salvia gave the Lady Warriors a 1-0 lead at 10:58 of the first half, scoring her initial varsity goal with an assist to hard-working sophomore Susan Cookson.

Cookson made it 2-0 with an unassisted tally at 18:37, at which time it looked like business as usual for the locals.

But the Red Raiders, 6-2-0, cut their deficit to 2-1 on senior Courtney Conlin's first goal of the season at the 29-minute mark.

Freshman forward Jen Murnane got that one back for Andover midway through the second half, with Salvia notching the assist.

"We played aggressive, smart soccer in the first half," said Coach Loschi. "But after we took the 3-1 lead we turned complacent and lazy. We fell asleep and let Lowell turn the tide against us. They got rolling and there was no way for us to dig ourselves out."

"Lowell played very hard at the end and we didn't respond to the challenge."

The Red Raiders' catalyst, not surprisingly, was senior striker Kerry Conlin who had 15 goals in her team's first eight games.

She connected at the 21-minute mark, unassisted, then set up twin sister Courtney Conlin five minutes later to tie it before slamming home the game-winner at 29:00 with the setup to Kara Reilly.

Both Loschi and Lowell first-year Coach Sue Nelson, who was understandably ecstatic, split the goaltending chores with their two keepers.

Andover's tandem of junior Kim Kelley (first half) and sophomore Meghan Lynch combined for seven saves, the same number recorded by the Red Raiders' duo of Katelyn Gwizda (first half) and Meghan Monaghan.

"Sue Cookson and (senior midfielder) Robin Lapointe were the two best players on the field," said Coach Loschi. "They kept going the entire game."

Wilmington 3 - Andover 2

This loss was even more devastating than Lowell's, as freshman heroine Nicole Ciaramaglia emerged from a pack of players at 39:35 and drilled the winning shot into the net.

"A throw-in by Adrienne Fay bounced around in front of the Andover net, and Nicole finally booted it home from about 15 yards out," said Wildcats' Coach Sue Hendee.

Wilmington, 4-1-1 league and 4-2-2 overall entering a big game with Billerica yesterday, had erased its early 2-0 deficit with goals by sophomore forward Renee Vachon at 20:00 of the first half and junior center-forward Kerri Casella at 17:00 of the second half.

Vachon scored on a through pass from Ciaramaglia, touching the shot past the drawn-out goaltender, while Casella converted a throw-in by Fay.

Andover senior midfielder Robin Lapointe pocketed her first goal of the season early in the game, and then set up Amy Pierre for the Lady Warriors' early two-goal cushion.

Wilmington goalkeeper Mary Armata finished with six saves.

Andover 7 - Dracut 0

Before the disastrous double dip the locals struggled through the first half with the Middies, taking a 2-0 lead, and then cranked it up with five goals in the final 40 minutes.

"I think it was difficult playing back-to-back games after facing a tougher opponent (Peabody)," explained Coach Loschi. "We were lackadaisical and Dracut played with a lot of spirit in the first half."

Shannon Lee scored the only goal necessary at 10:56 of the first half, punching the ball into the net from a scramble with the assist to Amy Pierre.

Sue Cookson's third goal in four games, once again unassisted, made it 2-0 at the 36:02 mark as she stole the ball and fired to the shortside corner.

Sophomore Randi Spiegel followed with a pair of rapid-fire goals 61 seconds apart at 14:44 and 15:45.

The first was unassisted on a high cross that the Dracut goaltender actually misplayed, and the second came on a nifty move after taking a breakaway pass from senior midfielder Sarah Paskowsky.

The goals were the second and third of the season for Miss Spiegel.

Amy Pierre got into the act at 28:48 on an indirect kick, Christine Contos tapping the ball back several yards to set up the hard blast.

Missy Famiglietti's third goal wrapped up the offense with just over two minutes to play, as she controlled a crossing pass from freshman linemate Jen Murnane and tapped the ball past the Middies' keeper.

Meghan Lynch (first half) and junior Kim Kelley (second half) split the net duties, making one save apiece en route to the team's first shutout.

Defensive standouts for Andover were senior Rachel Buonopane, sophomore Susan Ashlock and Christine Contos.

Field hockey team registers win, loss and tie

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High field hockey team came up with a win, a loss and a tie in recent Merrimack Valley Conference play, as the Lady Warriors whipped Dracut (2-0), tied Lawrence High (0-0) and dropped a tough decision to Haverhill (1-0).

That mixed bag left Coach Sandy Lunt's squad at 2-10-2 overall heading into the final four games of the season, including one at Chelmsford tomorrow (3:30 p.m.) and another with Tyngsboro on Monday night (7 p.m.) at Lovely Field.

Andover could be a spoiler as Chelmsford and Tyngsboro are currently locked in a torrid two-way struggle for the MVC championship, Tyngsboro at 9-1-3 in league play and Chelmsford one point behind at 9-2-2.

The locals played both top teams tough the first time around, dropping a 1-0 decision to Chelmsford and a 2-0 verdict to Tyngsboro.

Scoring continues to be the problem, with Andover producing just eight goals in 14 games while being shut out 10 times.

Andover 2
Dracut 0

Senior forward Jen Kitowicz and Swaroop Reddy both scored their second goals of the season, one in each half, as the Lady Warriors chalked up their second victory and second of three shutouts this season at the visiting Middies' expense.

Miss Kitowicz stuck home the only goal necessary at 8:41 of the first 30-minute half, assist to senior forward and Co-Captain Andrea Minichiello.

Miss Reddy provided the insurance goal at 18:28 of the second half, set up by junior forward Christine Durant.

Senior goaltender Tanielle Smith played the first half and made two saves, and junior Kathleen Harris worked a perfect second half in net to preserve the shutout.

The winners outshot Dracut 9-2 overall as Middies' goalie Julie Pramas was forced to make seven stops.

Cited for strong efforts by Coach Lunt were senior forward Leigh Clarke and senior midfielder Samantha Ford.

(Earlier Games)

Andover 4
Tewksbury 1

Four players scored goals, two in each half, as the Lady Warriors shocked visiting Tewksbury with their offensive punch.

Senior forward and Co-Captain

Andrea Minichiello made it 1-0 just 1:27 into the game, assist to senior midfielder Colleen Sherry, and six minutes later junior forward Christine Anderson converted with the setup to senior midfielder and Co-Captain Stacey Lavoie.

The Redgals trimmed the deficit to 2-1 late in the half, but AHS was not to be denied on this day.

Senior forward Jen Kitowicz provided breathing room at 22:30 of the second half, less than eight minutes from the final whistle, with an assist to junior midfielder Sara Weir.

Miss Weir then wrapped up the attack at 27:50, collecting her first goal by converting a pass from junior line-mate Jackie LeMaitre.

Senior goaltender Tanielle Smith and junior Kathleen Harris split the goaltending duties and were forced to make just one save between them.

Defensive standouts for the winners were senior Jaime Heller and Stacey Lavoie.

Andover 0

The Lady Warriors came within five minutes of chalking up another point in the standings, but Chelmsford's Laurie Nowlan came through with a blast that no one touched at the 25-minute mark of the second half.

Tanielle Smith played well in net once again, while other standouts were Jen Kitowicz, Jaime Heller and senior defender Sarah Goldin.

Following their tough struggle with Andover, the Lions suffered their first defeat of the season when Methuen posted a 1-0 victory.

Andover 0

First-half goals by Julie Manning and Sheri Manning stood up for the perennially-powerful Tigers, who scored twice three minutes apart at the 21- and 24-minute marks.

Tanielle Smith helped keep it close with nine saves, while Tyngsboro four-year veteran Nicole Luongo was perfect in the Tigers' net en route to her sixth shutout in seven games and the 46th of her illustrious high school career.

Senior midfielder Leigh Clarke and steady Jaime Heller were defensive leaders for the locals.

Cross country teams not fast enough for Lowell

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High boys and girls varsity cross country teams completed the toughest part of their 1993 Merrimack Valley Conference schedules last week, as both dropped competitive meets to host Lowell High at the Red Raiders' Shedd Park course.

The AHS boys fell to 1-4-0 overall with a 21-34 loss, while the Lady Warriors dipped to 1-3-0 with a 24-31 setback.

Coach Leo Lafond's harrier squads were back in action yesterday, hosting Methuen and Billerica for a tri-meet, and next Wednesday Andover has another league tri-meet at home against Haverhill and Dracut (3:30 p.m.).

Andover girls

The Lady Warriors took three of the top five places, and five of the first 10, but still dropped a tough 24-31 decision to Lowell.

Red Raiders' undefeated ace Lisa Roy blew the field away with a 15:56 clocking over the 2.6 miles, winning the race by 50 seconds and beating the first AHS finisher by almost one minute.

Junior Co-Captain Amanda Verreault, senior Co-Captain Melanie McGarry and freshman Melissa Ying were third, fourth and fifth respectively, but Lowell swept the next three places to capture the meet.

Senior Co-Captain Amanda Grasso placed ninth and Shunda Graham was 10th.

The Andover junior varsity (4-0-0) won its fourth straight meet behind the first place effort of Megan Woo.

Andover boys

Another strong individual performance by Max Dawson was again overshadowed by the 21-34 team loss.

Senior Co-Captain Dawson was second to LHS standout Brian Doyle, who crossed in 15:10 and won the race by a comfortable 15 seconds.

The Red Raiders grabbed three of the top four places and five of the first seven to clinch the triumph.

Senior Co-Captain Kevin Sharkey was fifth, and completing the top 10 were Andover sophomore Leo Blais, sophomore Charlie Russo and junior Kevin Shepard.

The Andover JV boys also remained perfect, blasting Lowell by a big score as Mark Langone led a local sweep of the top five places.

ACBL registration ends this Sunday, Oct. 24

Registration for the Andover Church Basketball League will close this Sunday, Oct. 24.

Forms are available at the Andover Hockey Shop in Shawsheen Square and Village Sampler, 34 Chestnut St. The fee is $25.

The league has five divisions: Junior (3rd-4th grade), Intermediate Boys (5th-6th grade), Intermediate Girls (4th-6th grade), Senior Boys and Senior Girls (7th-8th grade).

Methuen puts blemish on golfers' record

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High golf team, taking it on the chin, saw its hopes for an undefeated Merrimack Valley Conference season shattered with a lopsided 8-1 loss to Methuen High at Merrimack Valley Golf Club.

The Golden Warriors had won 12 consecutive matches prior to the loss, which left them at 11-1-0 in league play and 12-1-0 overall.

Coach Bob Lawson's squad still entered the final week of the regular season with a two match lead over Central Catholic (10-3-0) in the MVC Small School standings, while Methuen improved to 8-3-0 overall and remained tied for first in the Large School Division with Billerica.

Andover shared the Large School crown with Chelmsford in 1991 and this loss was only the sixth in the last 43 matches (36-6-1).

Sophomore No. 1 Dave Shaffer scored the only point for AHS when he edged the Rangers' Dave Weagle, 1-up, and took team medalist honors with a 39.

Ki Kwon of Methuen was the overall medalist with a two-over 37 on the Rangers' home course.

Also playing well for Andover, and dropping tough decisions on the final hole, were senior Co-Captain Marc Escott and sophomore Jeff Shear.

Andover 8 Dracut 1

No. 3 Pat Annese was the overall medalist with a 38, and he also defeated Barry Lavoie head-to-head by a 4-and-3 margin.

Dave Shaffer fired a 39 and handled the Middies' Jeff Lavoie easily, 5-and-3.

No. 2 man Jeff Mazza and No. 5 Marc Escott both shot 40, the former edging Pete Courtemanche 2-and-1 and the latter dumping Dracut's Alan Keyes 4-and-2.

C.J. Dadd, again slotted at No. 6, topped Mike Dolan, 3-and-2, while Jeff Mazza fired a 45 and halved his match with Dave Harne.

Andover 6 Haverhill 3

Although the Hillies' John Cox grabbed medalist honors at Indian Ridge CC with a 39, and handed Dave Shaffer his first loss of the season 2-and-1, it wasn't enough as the Golden Warriors' depth prevailed.

Pat Annese was Andover's medalist with a 40, and he also won his match 1-up over Mark Mangione of always-dangerous Haverhill.

Other pointscorers for the MVC leaders were Jeff Mazza, who edged Eric Jewett 2-and-1, and Marc Escott who romped 4-and-3 over Ross Martin.

The Hillies also won three matches, but the fourball made the difference as AHS won two points outright and halved the third.

Andover 6 Tewksbury 3

Dave Shaffer chalked up medalist honors as he carded a 37 at Trull Brook GC in Tewksbury and defeated Peter Butt of the Redmen, 3-and-2.

Unbeaten Tewksbury No. 2 man Chris Bibb shared medalist laurels, also firing a 37, while beating Pat Annese 4-and-3.

AHS No. 4 Marc Escott shot a 42 and beat Jarrod Gennetti (45), 2-and-1, while No. 3 Jeff Mazza (41) dumped Brian Donoghue of the Redmen, 2-and-1.

C.J. Dadd halved his match with Chris Pendleton, firing a 44, and Andover won two of three best ball points.

PA Tidbits

The Phillips Academy football team evened its record at 2-2 after winning 21-12 over previously unbeaten Cushing Academy. Capt. Todd Harris of Andover caught two touchdown passes from quarterback Mike Sciliano to give Phillips a 14-0 lead into the half. Sciliano hooked up with Harris seven times for 173 yards. Harris had eight tackles and a 30-yard run on an interception. Sciliano went 10-16 for 216 yards and caught two interceptions. Brendan Kennedy was sidelined with a back injury.

The girls soccer team remained undefeated with a 1-1 tie against Holderness and a 5-2 win over Harvard JV. Captain Nicole Rhodes scored Phillips' lone goal versus Holderness and had two assists and a goal in the Harvard game. Abby Harris and Jenny Bradway, both of Andover, tallied a goal each against Harvard. Harris has been sidelined with stress fractures since the beginning of the season.

The field hockey team continues to be unbeaten after two wins and a tie last week. Heidi Cline of Andover and Caitie Madera each scored twice and captain Jen Karlen added a goal in the 5-0 win against Brooks. The team posted a 3-0 shutout against Nobles. Meaghan Madera notched the only goal for Phillips in a 1-1 draw against Holderness.

The boys soccer team dropped their game against Choate after a dramatic three-goal comeback in the second half before time ran out.

The boys and girls cross-country team defeated Thayer Academy and St. Pauls School in their weekend meet.

The girls volleyball team defeated Cushing 3-1. After dropping the second game 13-15, they won 15-3 and 15-5 in the final two games. Their record is 3-3.

also third (2:10.97), along with the 200 free relay quartet of Jenn Rando, Lindsay Bates, junior Katherine Matto and Whitney Bates (1:59.72).

Kate Lennon was fourth in the 100 free (1:07.64) and Megan Miller in the 100 back (1:17.93).

Earning points for fifth place were sophomore Elly Smith in the 200 free (2:36.41), Lennon in the 200 IM (2:51.41), Whitney Bates in the 500 free (29.51), Heather Vanderheiden in the 100 fly (1:19.99), Kristen Lawrence in the 500 free (6:45.53) and Mandy Wilson in the 100 breaststroke (personal-best 1:21.13).

Haverhill 121 Andover 65

Diana Liberty had another superb day with victories in the 50- and 500-yard freestyle races, but the Lady Warriors had little else to cheer about in this one.

Defending State champ Liberty defeated Hillies' standout Allyson Horgan in their distance showdown, posting the state's fastest time to date this fall (5:12.81) while beating Horgan (5:13.53) by less than one second.

Boys varsity soccer team extends win streak

By Rick Harrison

The high-flying Andover boys varsity soccer team extended its win streak through five games with recent impressive victories over Methuen (9-1), Billerica (2-0) and Dracut (5-1).

Those results further ensconced the Golden Warriors in second place in the Large School Division of the Merrimack Valley Conference, where they appear destined to remain barring a total and highly unlikely collapse by undefeated leader Lowell (12-0-0).

Entering yesterday's game with pesky Haverhill, which stunned Andover 1-0 the first time around, Coach Dave Amundsen's crew needed just three of a possible 12 points in its final six games to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the 16th time in the last 18 years.

"The last week and a half has been very satisfying," said Coach Amundsen. "We've made a strong turnaround since the loss to Lowell (3-1), but we have to keep it going because the schedule isn't going to get any easier down the stretch."

AHS was 9-2-1 overall prior to the Haverhill game, and the locals return to action on Saturday morning against Central Catholic (10 a.m.) at Merrimack College Warrior field.

Three of the final four games will be at home, including back-to-back battles with division leaders Wilmington (9-3-0) on Monday afternoon and Lowell next Wednesday night (7 p.m.).

Andover senior striker Quang Nguyen, who produced his third hat trick of the season against Dracut, continues among the MVC and Eastern Mass. scoring leaders with 13 goals and four assists for 17 points.

Dracut 1

Senior forward Dan Small put the Golden Warriors ahead to stay at 8:00 of the first half, assist to Dan Buchholz, and Eric Dubasak made it 2-0 18 minutes later with his third goal in three games since being elevated from the JV team.

The second half was all Quang Nguyen, as he broke a recent goalscorer slump a pure hat trick. He netted three consecutive goals less than six minutes apart, including a pair within 30 seconds, as the lead jumped to 5-0.

Small (5-6-11 points) registered an assist on the first tally, while the final two were unassisted.

Nguyen also collected an assist on Dubasak's goal.

Dracut's Steve Szafran spoiled the shutout bid when he scored his seventh goal of the season with 10 minutes to play.

Chris Sintros played the first 50 minutes in net for Andover, while junior Dave Charland worked the final 30 minutes, and the pair combined for 10 saves.

"Our defenders did an excellent job of preventing dangerous shots, and the midfielders were outstanding in their passing to the forwards to get the plays started," said Coach Amundsen.

Cited for their efforts were senior midfielder Shawn Hadley and senior defenders Rob Weisman and Lyle Morgan.

The Golden Warriors outshot Dracut, 23-11.

The Middies and Andover had battled to a 1-1 tie in their first meeting on Sept. 21.

Andover 2
Billerica 0

The Golden Warriors broke a scoreless struggle with two second-half goals in this makeup game at Billerica.

"We didn't play very well but we'll take it," said Coach Amundsen.

Senior midfielder Dan Queen's second goal of the season at 14 minutes of the final half would have been enough, but Eric Dubasak added the insurance goal just eight minutes from the finish.

Quang Nguyen and Shawn Hadley notched assists, while Chris Sintros went the distance in net and made six saves en route to his third complete-game shutout and the team's fifth whitewash.

Andover 9
Methuen 1

Eight different players scored goals as Coach Amundsen played everyone, and the locals shared the wealth against a winless Methuen crew that left the field 0-9-0.

The Rangers' goal was just their second of the season, while they have yielded 54, and the victory enabled Andover to complete a season series sweep after a 5-0 romp earlier this fall.

The nine goals were the most in a game by Andover this fall, eclipsing the previous high of seven netted in a season-opening 7-0 romp over Chelmsford.

Senior forward Shawn Hadley was the lone multiple marksman as he netted his second and third goals of the season.

Adding one each were Mike Maguire (sixth), Dan Buchholz (third), sophomore striker-midfielder Sean Rodriguez (third), senior forward Dan Small (fourth), Matt Ely (second), senior defender Rob Weisman (first) and Doug Edmonds (first).

Senior midfielder Dave Poulo passed out his fourth and fifth assists, senior forward Dan Small added one set-up, and other assists went to Rodriguez and Adam Currier.

Senior goalkeeper Chris Sintros and junior Dave Charland pooled talents for six saves in the AHS net.

Central Catholic 3

"We started out very strong, but with about 30 minutes to play we let down, gave them a penalty shot, and all of a sudden it was an exciting game," said Coach Amundsen. "Overall we played fairly well except for a 20 minute stretch."

"We were fortunate to be able to turn it around, because the momentum was definitely on Central's side after they tied it."

Senior Adam McHale and Nguyen put Andover ahead 2-0 at halftime, McHale scoring off a corner kick by senior midfielder Dave Poulo and Nguyen's first assisted by Buchholz.

Mike Maguire set up Nguyen's second of the game early in the final half, preceding the Central explosion.

Buchholz pocketed the game-winner with about 12 minutes left, chipping a perfect shot over the goalie's head from 20 yards out to make it 4-3.

Nguyen completed his hat trick and added the insurance goal unassisted four minutes later.

Senior midfielder-defender Dave Stutz was sidelined with a knee injury.

Wilmington 2

The Wildcats had won four of their first five, bowing only to Lowell (1-0), and had permitted only three goals before the Golden Warriors erupted at the North Middle School field in Wilmington.

Five different players chalked up goals for the better-balanced victors.

"Wilmington is strong and aggressive, but we were able to take advantage of our opportunities and spread the scoring around," said Coach Amundsen. "Three of the goals came from halfbacks and that's an encouraging sign."

Senior halfback Shawn Hadley opened the offense with his first goal of the season 14 minutes into the game. Dan Small was credited with the assist after his hustle kept the ball alive in the penalty area.

Matt Ely, also a halfback, made it 2-0 seconds before the first half ended. He attacked from the midfield area and took a perfect set up pass from Dave Poulo.

Halfback Dan Buchholz booted home the eventual game-winner at eight minutes of the second half. The assist to Mike Maguire.

Quang Nguyen's unassisted goal with 10 minutes left offset the second Wildcats score, completing the impressive and convincing triumph.

Sintros finished with eight saves, including one which he smothered off the shooter's foot at point-blank range and another beauty during a wild goal-mouth scramble.

Coach Amundsen lauded the defensive play of senior sweeper Lyle Morgan and fullback Rob Weisman.

Kreative Kin

When Sheila Finocchiaro started her own business she wanted to be involved in the happy events of people's lives. With Kreative Kin her monogramming and personalizing business she has found the perfect fit. She loves working with the client to develop a design, which is unique, affordable and expresses the client's individuality.

The whole Finocchiaro family is involved in Kreative Kin with Sheila. Her husband handles the paperwork, her daughter Gina helps in the shop and her son Francesco does the word processing and mailings. Working together to make a success of the new business has given everyone a piece of it and they are enjoying their success.

At Kreative Kin monogramming is not just for formal clothing or household linens - it's for whatever catches your fancy.

Working with items purchased in her shop or from the outside, Sheila can take an ordinary gift idea and make it a reflection of the personality of the recipient. Creating a family heirloom is a special joy for Sheila, whether it is monogramming a christening gown or cap, a bridal handkerchief, or a matzo or challah cover.

The shop stocks an array of clever and whimsical gift ideas perfect for personalizing, such as garment tote bags, blank hats, blank neckties, baby gifts and table linens. For graduation gifts she carries pennants, which can also be used to collect autographs. This summer, Kreative Kin personalized pillow cases for a local camp. The children used the cases to collect autographs as a souvenir of their summer at camp.

Sheila also stresses using monogramming as a practical solution to keeping track of children's belongings, particularly sweatshirts, which get mixed up in piles on the playing fields. She also monograms the linings of fur coats - a same day service. Kreative Kin accommodates corporate accounts as well. The turn around time for service is normally from two to five days.

The holidays are approaching and even a practical gift can be made more personal by monogramming. Kreative Kin is a great place to begin your hunt for gift ideas and the Finocchiaro family will be more than happy to help with suggestions. Kreative Kin is located at 38 Florence St., Andover (at the corner of Florence and Park streets.) Shop hours are Tuesday, Thursday and Friday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Wednesday 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. or by appointment. Telephone: 475-7144 gation of the incident, turned himself in at the station Wednesday morning as requested by police. He was arraigned in Lawrence District Court on one charge of forceable rape. He entered a not-guilty plea and was released on his own personal recognizance and ordered to stay away from the alleged victim. His case was continued to Tuesday, Nov. 16, for a pretrial conference.

The incident was reported to police last Tuesday night, Oct. 12, after Mr. Pitts called police from the R&R Coffee Shoppe and reported a female was causing a problem and he wanted her removed from the premises, according to police reports. Police responded and talked to the woman involved, but she did not mention the assault at that time, and police left. About an hour later, the alleged victim came to the police station with a girlfriend and reported the previous sexual assault to Detective Joseph Hastings.

According to testimony in court yesterday, Wednesday, the victim reported she drove to an apartment of a friend on Center Street at about 1 p.m. on Oct. 4 with Mr. Pitts. She alleged he began to make sexual advances toward her in a room at the apartment and she refused to have oral sex with him. Mr. Pitts proceeded to force oral sex on her, despite her protests, the alleged victim told police. A third person was in the apartment at the time, although not in the same room, according to testimony in court.

According to Glen Hurlihy, an attorney who represented Mr. Pitts at the arraignment for bail purposes only, Mr. Pitts said he had "somewhat of a relationship - a platonic relationship, not a dating relationship," with the alleged victim. Police were a little less clear and said the two may have dated. Mr. Pitts said he was being pursued by the woman. He said he gave police a note he got from her to that effect, which he said she slipped under his door since the alleged rape.

Walter Pitts

According to testimony, the disturbance at the coffeehouse last week occurred after Mr. Pitts heard that the alleged victim was spreading rumors about him and the alleged sexual assault, and he tried to kick her out of the establishment.

Police said Mr. Pitts was made aware by that incident, and rumors later in the week that the alleged victim had gone to police, that he could be charged with a sexual assault. He contacted a lawyer, who in turn contacted police this week and learned that a warrant was going to be issued. Police asked Mr. Pitts at that time to turn himself in at the police station Wednesday morning, which he did.

Mr. Pitts has no police record, according to police. He was released immediately after the arraignment but when asked, chose not to talk to the press about the allegations.

Mr. Pitts told the court he was indigent and could not afford his own attorney, but his request for a court appointed attorney was denied, and he was instructed by the judge to obtain his own counsel. Mr. Pitts claimed he only earns $80 a week as manager of the R&R Coffee Shoppe, which his family owns.

The R&R opened about a year ago and has become a popular hangout for local teens.

Rape reported on River Road

An alleged rape, completely unrelated to another also reported this week, was reported to have occurred at a house party on River Road in Andover last weekend.

The sexual assault was reported at 4:45 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 17.

All persons at the party were under 18 and the alleged victim is a juvenile, according to Lt. Jack Houlihan, commander of the detective division.

The incident was originally reported to Lawrence police and, after an initial investigation, was determined to be an Andover case, according to Andover police.

Detective Joseph Hastings is investigating.

AIDS hotline is free for teens

The AIDS Action Committee of Massachusetts recently opened the nation's first statewide, toll-free AIDS, HIV and STD hotline staffed by teens, for teens.

Funded in part through a grant from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH), the "Youth Only AIDS Line" or "YO Line" is staffed Monday through Friday from 3 to 9 p.m. by teens who have undergone extensive training in peer support and counseling. Working in pairs, each teen handles calls during their two three-hour shifts per week, providing support, referrals and information on AIDS, HIV and sexually transmitted diseases for other teens.

The toll-free number is 1-800-788-1234.

Women In Business

Debbie Lane: A gifted business woman

By Cindy Garrett Rayner

she wasn't begging her parents to pull the car over to stop at a gift shop, she was playing store at home. Debbie Lane always wanted her own gift shop, her dad always wanted his own discount clothing store and the family wanted financial stability, so she had to wait.

Then she met and married Bob, who supported her dreams of a gift shop.

"My husband was willing to be poor for year - it was a family-sacrifice type venture."

They opened the Andovers Gift Shop on Oct. 1, 1982.

Margaret Salafia: Citizen at birth, she never came to U.S. until college

Margaret G. Salafia was born in Bangkok, Thailand, of parents in the U.S. Department of State. She was educated in several international schools and graduated from the Teheran American School in Teheran, Iran, shortly before the embassy take-over and the Shah of Iran was deposed. Although Ms. Salafia was an American citizen, the first time she came to the United States was to attend Emerson College in Boston where she graduated with a bachelor degree in communications.

Her professional career brought her to Andover in 1984 where she joined the staff of Advertising Management, a local advertising agency, as an account executive. She is now vice president of client services and a partner in the firm. Ms. Salafia's strongest abilities lie in media selection and placement, advertising budget control and overall client management.

Ms. Salafia is an avid children's advocate. She is now serving in her second term as president of the Northeast Regional board of directors of the MSPCC (Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children) and serves on their statewide board as well. She is an active member of the board of directors of the Lawrence YWCA where she acts as a mentor to disadvantaged young women. Ms. Salafia's other community service projects include membership in the Andover Historical Society and she is a charter member of the Andover Quota Club.

She is an avid skier, cyclist and can regularly be seen RollerBlading on the streets of Andover.

Ms. Salafia lives with her husband, Paul, at 2 Bryan Lane.

Suetta Tenney actively disavows superwoman role

By Alix Driscoll

Suetta Tenney is not your stereotypical doctor. Her blond hair hangs unrestrained, and she sports an oversized black T-shirt from the recent Museum of Fine Arts exhibit proclaiming her love for Monet. There are suggestions of earlier non-sophisticated unhurried days in her appearance when she is relaxing at home.

Dr. Tenney's home is filled with homework assignments in progress of her Sanborn School first-grader. There are charts to help her children keep track of household chores. Musical instruments await practice opportunities. Everywhere you look there are eclectic collections of books - mythology, art and several levels of children's storybooks. Outside a no-maintenance yard of forest and bark chips surrounds the Bateson Drive home.

Dr. Tenney actively disavows the superwoman role.

"I try to paint and be a doctor as authentically as I can."

She has set up her on-call times to dovetail with her family's needs and her three children attend daycare at times to give her breathing space. She shares a passion for classical music with the West Parish Church adult choir which is working on the Faure Requiem and she currently is reading Joseph Campbell commentaries on mythology and The Gnostic Gospels.

Dr. Tenney looks you in the eye and speaks her mind as a caring sage as she discusses the dual role of physician as healer and educator.

ent possibilities.

"Much of our stress is trying to control what we can't control such as death and dying. According to medical data half of the patients who come to a generalist's office have some stress or emotional factor," she said.

Community meets that need. There is an absence of role models for healthy women when one is not a wife or mother or if these roles are not enough. This creates a social void. She suggests networking with other women and mentioned the recent A Day for Midlife Women at the Haverhill YWCA and the series of fall workshops there.

"A lot of our traditional dichotomy is independence is good and dependence is bad. We have lost our sense of the value of interdependence," she said. "There are things we can do more effectively and joyously when there are 40 (of us.)"

"Men need networking too. Don't forget the Wednesday is Networking Day (WIND) group" she said.

There are opportunities in this town for building community for men, such as choirs, church committees for yard sales, professional societies or Habitat for Humanity building groups.

A general internist with Pentucket Medical Associates, she has a background in internal medicine, mental health and eating disorders. Dr. Tenney graduated from Smith College and attended George Washington University and Tufts Medical School, followed by a residency in primary care at Cambridge City Hospital. She has lived in Andover five years.

Suetta Tenney

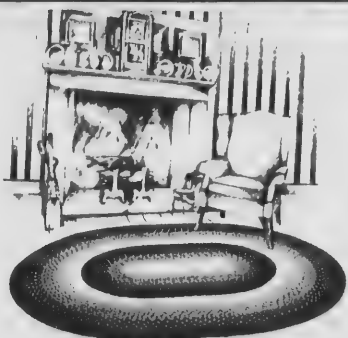

With her husband, Robert, an engineer at Alphatech, Dr. Tenney and 3-year-old Amberly, kindergarten son, T A, and first-grader, Angela, often backpack in nearby Bakers Meadow as a family activity. It's also a challenge.

"It's something the children have to work on. They have to do it for themselves."

Alix Driscoll is an intern at the Townsman.

Kathryn Daniel is a freelance book production manager

By Cindy Garrett Rayner

Andover's hottest trivial pursuit player, Kathryn Daniel, knows about biology, the history of Imperial Russia, computer programming, college vocabulary building, developmental English and more. Ms. Daniel, of 14 High St., has been a freelance book production manager for 16 years.

It all started when she graduated from the University of Maine with a degree in English. Intrigued by the world of publishing, Ms. Daniel moved to a room at the YMCA in Boston and made a call to Houghton-Mifflin. The rest is history. After working with Houghton-Mifflin for four years and Little Brown for four years, she brought her skills and training home with her new baby and has been working from home ever since.

As a freelance book production manager specializing in college textbooks, Ms. Daniel is contacted by publishing companies such as D.C. Heath, Digital Press and Simon & Schuster, which want to "farm out" the production of the book. She is responsible for orchestrating the schedules, budgets, salary negotiations and personnel to prepare a book for publication. Ms. Daniel acts as a hub for the author, book designer, typesetter, photo researcher, permissions editor, proof reader, layout person, copy editor, indexer and illustrator.

Ms. Daniel is a self-proclaimed "organizational maniac, but not compulsive." That's a good thing because work is not all that she juggles. As well as looking after her own three children, Susanna, Abbie and Andrea, she is co-superintendent of the Sunday school at Free Christian Church where her husband, Jack, is pastor. She also leads a weekly Bible study and even finds time to travel, read, walk and do ceramics.

Her newest adventure has been to write an article for the September/October issue of the American Girl Magazine, much to the delight of her daughter, Andrea.

There are obvious benefits to freelancing, such as summers off, no commute, no dress codes and no politicking. But for Ms. Daniel, the biggest benefit has been her ability to be available for her daughters.

"I enjoy the flexibility of my job and the opportunity to be around when my daughters come home from school so I can help them process the day. They need someone to talk to who loves them and listens to them," she said.

"My life is very full and balanced. I think life requires balance (intellectually, physically, spiritually, emotionally, with work, family and friends) so when the rough times come, I won't fall over."

After describing her life, Kathryn Daniel sighs and smiles as she says, "Life is good."

Helen Chongris, owner of Stitches of the Past, meets the demands of being a business woman, mother and wife

By Dean E. Chongris

I am writing to nominate my wife, Helen Chongris, for your Women in Business section. Helen is the owner of Stitches of the Past, the embroidery supply shop at 68 Park St.

Since Helen opened the shop 15 months ago, she has crafted her work schedule to meet the demands of our family - we have a 7-year-old daughter and a 4-year-old son - and the needs of her customers. Though she keeps the relatively short shop hours of 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, Helen has developed a loyal following who appreciate her dedicated service even if at a young mother's offbeat hours.

To help people complete projects in a pinch, Helen sometimes drives back to the shop evenings after dinner or on Sundays with the children. Last Dec. 22, she settled us at home after work and drove back to pick up the work of a customer whose commuting schedule didn't allow her to see Helen by 4 p.m. that day. Amid family preparations for the holiday, Helen finished sewing the embroidery into a stocking that the customer was able to present to her mother-in-law for Christmas.

I am proud that despite the economy, my wife is surviving in a business that chokes so many independent retailers. Yet Helen's attention to detail and understanding that wonderful products are nothing without wonderful service are gaining notice. In December, Stitches of the Past was written up in the NorthWest Weekly section of The Boston Globe as a Pick of the Weekly. Writers and editors from two national magazines also have interviewed her.

The 250 squarefoot Helen reigns over might not seem like much, but it's all what you do with it. She has saturated every nook with the finest of hard-to-find British and European supplies. And remembering her own frustrating days of shopping in boutiques with children, Helen, even in that space, has allowed room for a tiny wing chair topped with a musical needlepoint cushion, so that visiting youngsters can sit in the lap of luxury, quietly amused as adults browse.

Maureen Gill recently started her own business

By Alix Driscoll

How do you start a small business? Only a few months ago Maureen Gill of 19 Korinthian Way launched M.B.G. Associates Inc., an authorized dealer for Profiles International.

Profiles is a Texas company that produces computer-based assessment and development products to assist decision-makers in hiring and promoting appropriate workers for specific jobs.

Here's how she did it.

Ms. Gill's son, Sean, is in graduate school at Notre Dame University and may go to law school. Another source of income would be helpful so she started the business.

She had been trained in education and was a substitute math teacher at both Doherty and West middle schools and liked to work directly with people. With her husband, Edward, a project manager at NYNEX, she researched both franchises and dealer opportunities, and chose to become a dealer because it is not as complicated or binding as a franchise. The dealership runs sales training programs, she said.

"My husband has been very supportive and has been trying to guide me on the way," Ms. Gill said.

Ms. Gill went to Boston to seek advice from both the Small Business Administration and Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), and attended several seminars. If she needed particular help in the future she could meet with a mentor from SCORE. To make connections in this area she joined the Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce and the Merrimack Valley Business Women's Network at the Lawrence YWCA.

Ms. Gill's next step to foster the new company was to send out letters and run an ad on the radio. She has conducted a seminar in Wakefield and has planned one for October at Ramada Hotel Rolling Green.

Ms. Gill's business assists decision-makers in companies to match the right person with the right job. "From my experience in education and business, it appeared to me that the single greatest cause of failure was misuse of a company's greatest asset - its people."

According to Ms. Gill, the solution is Prevue Assessment, a product devised to assist companies to enhance profits, productivity and organization through the most effective utilization of people. Targeted for use by executives, managers, supervisors and sales personnel, Prevue works by measuring individual cognitive ability, motivation, interests, personal characteristics, and social desirability. These tests are developed by testing a company's current top performers. Individual employee strengths as well as weaknesses are identified.

"The result is that people are placed in positions for which they are most suited and have the greatest opportunity to be successful."

What's Ms. Gill's greatest satisfac-

"I enjoy meeting people and talking about the business. I'm glad to hear what the problems are," she said.

Diane Lim does it all well

By Cindy Garrett Rayner

Discipline, focus and organization allow Diane Lim to be all that she dreamed and more.

As a concert pianist, business administrator, wife, mother of two, homemaker and community volunteer, Ms. Lim does it all and does it all well.

Born into a family that appreciated the beauty of music, Ms. Lim was introduced to piano at age 6. She loved music from the start and knew that she was going to be a musician.

Leaving Nebraska to follow her dreams, Ms. Lim went to New York for her bachelor's and master's degrees from Juilliard School of Music, and her doctorate from the Eastman School of Music.

Ms. Lim's musical highlight was traveling to Graz, Austria, in 1980 with her two sisters, also Juilliard grads. Diane, the pianist, Margaret, the cellist, and Elizabeth, the violinist, studied and performed chamber music together all summer.

Today Ms. Lim is a piano faculty member at the Longy School of Music in Cambridge. She instructs privately and works with the Young Performers group, age 8 to 18. The group comes for intensive study on Saturdays and Ms. Lim accompanies the young performers in their concerts or master's classes.

Learning many new pieces each week has been a great opportunity to "keep my fingers in shape," says Ms. Lim.

She has also been asked to perform in a new series of concerts, "Sundays at Seven," which celebrate the new music season in Boston and showcase Longy faculty. She practices piano in "small chunks" now that she has children, but she gets it done.

Ms. Lim also gets to practice on the adding machine, because her other job is overseeing the business side of her husband's medical practice, based in Melrose. She takes care of billing collections, insurance claims and more.

"It's good (to work with him) because it helps me understand the demands of his job."

But that's not all. Her other 24-hour-job is mothering her two daughters, Alyssa, 4, and Kelsey, 22 months. She spends time driving them to preschool, gymnastics and piano lessons.

Ms. Lim still has free time to pursue her other interests, arranging dried flowers (from her own garden), sewing (ballerina costumes for Halloween), and making arts and crafts projects. She also is a member of the Melrose/Wakefield Hospital Junior Auxiliary and the Beethoven Society.

For those wondering how she does it all, Ms. Lim says she depends on lists.

"I'm a lists person. I make lists of lists and it helps. And I tend to be very focused; it's a natural outgrowth of studying music."

Ms. Lim attributes her strength to her upbringing.

"My parents instilled in me a really strong work ethic - to always do the best you can."

And that's exactly what Diane Lim does, everything the best.

Pam Christo teaches dance

By Cindy Garrett Rayner

After spending time with Pam Christo, you'll feel like YOU could have danced all night! She has successfully combined her vibrant love of dance and business to become owner of the Andover School of Ballet, the Dance Center of Danvers and Lynn, and more.

"My life just flowed right from one thing into the other, logically," says Ms. Christo.

It all started when her mother signed her up in a dance class.

"I knew at 3 that I loved it. I loved my teachers. They gave me a love of dance and taught me discipline. And discipline is a form of self love."

With this discipline, Ms. Christo continued to study with Alice Duffy in Boston and with Danny Hocter, Frank Hatchet and the Broadway Dance Center.

"My favorite teacher, Stanley Brown, always said, 'Talent is spelled W.O.R.K.,' and to this day Ms. Christo has those words hanging in her studios.

Her saga as a teacher began when she was a mature 14-year-old. At 25 cents a class, she filled classes at the Lynn Police Auxiliary Athletic League. Following the "flow" of life-

Linda Saunders just does it

Just like a Nike commercial, her daughters would chant, "Just do it!"

So she did it. She quit her job as a Chapter-One reading specialist in Lawrence in the spring of 1986. By mid-July, she had rented space on Park Street and filled it in no time, opening the doors in October. The Mercantile and its merchant, Linda Saunders of Timothy Drive, have become a successful duo. With no retail experience, Ms. Saunders made up her own rules, which seem to be working marvelously.

"I'm focused. I flit a little, but if I make up my mind to do something, I do it."

Since its opening, the Mercantile has tripled in size to accommodate an expanding selection, from furniture to housewares to clothes to jewelry and more. And there is even a special sales room because, "Everybody loves a sale," says Ms. Saunders.

Plus, 2,800 people in the past seven years have had a place to recycle their things.

"The Mercantile goes with the times — it's recycling time," says Ms. Saunders.

Using a discerning eye to collect 700-800 quality items a week, there's always a mix of current items (with tags still on) and vintage treasures (with a story to tell).

"I always wanted to do my own thing, and I always loved these kinds of stores! I'm not a 'fancy boutique' kind of person," says Ms. Saunders. "I feel like I'm doing something for the people... giving them a place where anyone can find a treasure (prices range from $1-$1,500). Anyone can come in and have a good time."

"I wouldn't want just a dress shop either. I like the kids, the furniture, the jewelry — knowing the people."

She has especially enjoyed watching an infant come in for his first coat, and this year come in for his first-grade coat. She has also been invited to patrons' houses to see their whole house decorated with Mercantile goods.

Ms. Saunders runs the business with the help of some part-timers and a supportive husband, Jay. He computerizes the store, does the books, helps move furniture and is there for general support. One of the biggest challenges Ms. Saunders faces is keeping the place organized. She sorts, folds, cleans and sets up displays for two hours every day before she opens. On big cleaning days, the goods she won't be using get recycled again, to Lazarus House and other places that have needs.

(Chicago), Kerry (New York) and Jodi (Denver).

Looking ahead, Ms. Saunders can't imagine opening another Mercantile, or expanding, for that matter.

"There's no where else to go, so that's it," she says, looking around the full rooms. Besides, she wants to be there for her customers. But her daughter in Denver, longing for the bargains from her mother's store, hints about a Mercantile Two.

"You have to work hard and like it. I love people, and I love the stuff."

Pam Christo

after-high school (with four years of instruction experience) Ms. Christo had the courage to open her first studio, The Dance Center in Lynn, 33 years ago.

"I don't just sit back and wait for things to come to me."

By her early 20s, Ms. Christo was owner of her own studio, a new bride, the mother of two boys, dance instructor and secretary. She tells of the days before there were answering machines.

"I would be teaching a class and the phone would ring, so I'd tell the class to practice what we were learning and run to the phone."

After 13 years, she opened her second Dance Center in Danvers.

Fortunately, her husband, George, "has been a peach of a guy for many, many years — he's so supportive."

Again, moving in a natural step, Ms. Christo opened her newest studio, The Andover School of Dance, to foot the bill for two simultaneous college tuitions. All three studios bring big-city professionalism and quality to the suburbs.

"We teach a lot more than dance. We teach how to be ladies and gentlemen, how to wait your turn, how to get along with others... and (from all of this) confidence is the product."

Ms. Christo wants students to "hold their heads up high and be proud of who they are." In 33 years of teaching, many students didn't pursue dance, "but I'm sure they walked away feeling better about themselves."

To attain these high goals, Ms. Christo adamantly says, "I only hire highly-qualified people — it makes my life easier and I can trust them."

Thinking of the future at a slower tempo, the Christos acquired a new business — a backdrop rental company, Charles H. Stuart and Company in Everett.

"It seemed like a logical thing to progress to, still working with the performing arts."

Business is booming and has tripled in size in three years. Plus the new circle of friends through the scenery business opened up another door — movie theaters on Martha's Vineyard — but that's another story.

"You become great if you love what you do and you're willing to work and follow through with discipline, focus and desire. It's not enough to just want something."

Her life's accomplishments show that all that W.O.R.K. pays off.

Gerri Powers helps others work

By Alix Driscoll

After the birth of her fourth child, Gerri Powers of Midland Circle began a student career of many years and many degrees.

She gained an associate degree from Northern Essex Community College, attended Merrimack College and gained her undergraduate degree from Salem State College. In 1979 she earned a master's degree in business education from Boston University. Ten years later Ms. Powers received a certificate of advanced graduate study from UMass Amherst.

"I arranged my schedule so I was home when the children got home from school and I studied from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. We were all in school together," she said about her long years of study.

First Ms. Powers taught business courses at Andover Junior College, where Bertucci Menucci Pizzeria is now located, and joined Northern Essex Community College, where she is now chairwoman of the Business Administration Department.

"As department chair my main responsibilities are scheduling and keeping programs state of the art."

Periodically she calls local firms to understand changes that technology demands. During the summer she and colleagues built training programs to help put laid-off AT&T workers back to work.

In addition to running the business administration department, Ms. Powers teaches several courses in office technology, and designs programs for students who will go on to four-year colleges.

"It's one of the most wonderful community colleges," she said.

She is particularly proud that the accounting firm Deloitte's Touche recently hired four Northern Essex students with associate degrees. Two stayed with the firm and the others went back to get bachelor's degrees.

Ms. Powers is currently working to develop a new certificate program focusing on the computerized office.

She and her husband, Edward, an attorney who consults on labor law and benefits, have four children, ages 24-31, and one grandchild.

To unwind, she's been taking piano lessons, and reading lots of John Grisham mysteries and mythology books.

Jane Griswold restores old structures

By Alix Driscoll

You've seen her work all over town: the sympathetic restorations of elderly structures, additions for growing families, the renovation of Moor and Mountain outfitters in Dundee Park and the well-considered results of her 18 years on the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Ms. Griswold is a graduate of Oberlin College in Ohio and Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Graduate School of Architecture, and is a registered architect. When her children were born she decided to freelance and not work full time.

"My husband, Tony, was extremely positive about giving me encouragement. He was not worried about me going back to work full time."

Over the 20 years, her architecture practice has grown into a thriving full-time career.

"But it's my full time. It's on my hours," she added quickly.

She has given almost two decades of service to the town as a member of Zoning Board of Appeals.

"It's so different from architecture. You have to think legally. We listen to people who get caught between the law and their piece of property. It's very broadening and a careful way to think."

Presently, Ms. Griswold is a volunteer at the Doherty Middle School library where her daughter, Anna, is a seventh-grader. Her involvement with the local Girl Scouts spans a decade and a half. She also sits on the board of the Stevens-Coolidge House in North Andover and has a strong concern for taking care of that historic structure.

Ms. Griswold has a fondness for old homes and greatly values conserving buildings, even moving them if necessary. Her own home on Woodland Road was once in the Moncrieff Cochran Bird Sanctuary at Phillips Academy.

"We need to think of the value in wood, manpower and skills," she said.

Her weekly column in The Eagle-Tribune entices her readers into appreciating the designs and building techniques of older homes all over the Merrimack Valley.

As the architect for Habitat for Humanity since it began building about eight years ago in Lawrence, Ms. Griswold has designed 14 or 15 homes.

"Because I did a lot of homes for developers and did modular construction, I knew how to maximize the use of space," she said.

Ms. Griswold is the Quaker representative to the Andover Clergy Associates Committee.

Her husband, Tony Radocchia, owns Montrose Hydraulics in a nearby community. One daughter, Alexandra, studies technical theatre and geology at Oberlin College. Their son, Peter, is a senior at Phillips Academy and student technical director at the school's mainstage Tang Theatre.

Is there any pressing need in town?

"We need historical districts which have clout. Our historical districts are set up by the Andover Historical Society but legally have no teeth. Most of the Merrimack Valley towns have historic districts."

Ms. Griswold currently sits on the Ballardvale Historic District Commission. She explained the proposal to set up such a district in Ballardvale would need to go before town meeting. The district, if approved, would protect the visual impact of the neighborhood, the scale and rhythm that is the village. The Central Street area and Shawsheen Village need similar legal protections, she believes.

The Andover Historical Commission and the Andover Historical Society recently awarded Ms. Griswold a personal certificate for professional expertise, calling her "an architect who practices what she preaches."

Fashion sense for the professional woman

By Vena Coco

Dressing for work can be a small work of daily courage. Life for most women is not simple. With so many choices available to us, things can get pretty complicated.

In the evolution of women in the workplace, we are well out of the era where women were rare in the executive suite.

In the '70's we were learning to play the game. We bought the "uniform" to show we were on the team, a neat suit in gray or navy, a floppy tie, etc., etc. We studied guidelines on what was wrong and what was right. Wearing what we felt good in was a dangerous indulgence. We complied to Professor Higgins' plaintive pleas, "Why can't a woman be more like a man?"

In the '80's things loosened up. Having gained credibility in the workplace, women collectively decided to use their femininity to their advantage. Why should a woman want to be more like a man?

Designer Donna Karan re-interpreted the dress for success look and gave women what they wanted: soft wrap skirts, draped blouses and unconstructed suit looks in practical and serviceable fabrics.

In the '90's the fact cannot be ignored that of all the signals we give out to the visual world, the impression made by our appearance and dress can be the strongest. It conveys how we think and conveys our sense of our inner selves.

Your visual introduction to anyone, whether at a meeting, in an elevator or an office, takes place in a very brief moment, when even before you have a chance to prove your credentials, you have communicated something about yourself - subliminal or blatant, intentional or not.

Your clothes and appearance are the silent persuaders. They allow you to make a statement without saying a word. Are they saying what you want them to say?

Generally speaking, the more empowered a woman becomes, the more likely she is to dress to express herself and please herself. She develops a sense of style. Having a sense of style is essentially a function of having an awareness of who you are and what you do, and communicating this self-image successfully to your advantage.

Companies spend thousands of dollars in packaging and promoting a product. If one will permit the analogy: it is up to the individual to provide the very best "package," the correct imagery, of what one represents. Talents, energy, intellect, abilities and even authority can all be visually communicated.

Vena Coco

Three important attitudes help facilitate this:

First, develop an attitude of self-confidence. Clothes alone will not do it, but they can help. When you're not feeling quite so confident, if you know you are appropriately dressed, you will begin to feel the way you want to look. Very briefly, if you choose good quality clothing, with simplicity of color and line, and give attention to comfort, you will find yourself more likely to focus on the business at hand.

Second, discard the attitude that attention to detail conveys an image of self-indulgence or frivolity. Remember that, on the contrary, attention to grooming, dress and choice of detail (in fit accessories, style, etc.) gives a message that you care about yourself and your job enough to put your best self forward. The last message you would ever want to give is one of not caring.

Third, nurture the attitude that you have a right to be feminine. You will be taken most seriously when you affirm your gender, not deny it. It has been statistically shown that in any situation of interaction, the most successful and influential individual, man or woman, is the one who is appropriately dressed, well groomed and confident.

Working professional women will most likely fit into one of three major career profiles: the corporate (includes attorneys, CEOs, bank officers); the communicator (sales, advertising, realtors, small businessowners); and the creative (interior designers, photographers, artists).

Each area of professionalism has its own focus and there are distinctive choices of dress and accessories that will most effectively communicate the best professional image.

The common denominator for all, however, is appropriateness and confidence as well as awareness so as to achieve the goals for success you set for yourself.

Debbie Lane: A gifted business woman

(originally at 10 Post Office Ave.)
 "What's the worst thing that could happen? We could fail. I would hate to fail, but your life is your family. Family is where you get your joy."

When children, Rob, Greg, and Danielle, joined the team, they went with Mom and Dad to New York and Boston gift shows and later would be treated to a museum or aquarium. And now the children work at the store on holidays and in the summer. Ms. Lane knows how important support is, stating, "If your family isn't into it wholeheartedly, then you might as well just hang it up."

In May 1992, the Andovers Gift Shop moved to 4 Main St. With double the floor space, Ms. Lane still had no problem filling it with intriguing, eclectic and affordable art pieces. It's a gallery of "things that jump out at me... and shout my name... because if it doesn't, it will never show up in my shop. I want it (the shop) to be special and reasonable. In all honesty, I get my rewards from making it special. If I'm entertained in the shop (and I'm there all the time), I know other people will be entertained."

Most of the things in her shop are in the gift-price range.

"People are always going to need presents and... New Englanders (like myself) want value for the dollar."

by word of mouth. Through all her travels, Ms. Lane has come to the conclusion that, "There isn't anything as diverse and wild (as her shop). There are customers who come regularly from New York because there is nothing like it there."

In her business, the biggest challenge for Ms. Lane is delegating responsibility and telling people what to do. She hires people who will work side-by-side with her, like Lisa Gaunt, who has been there for years.

Ms. Lane's favorite hobby, or "compulsion," as she calls it, is collecting quality, well-tumbled beach glass on an island off of Casco Bay. She also reads light fiction and cryptozoology newsletters (the study of unknown animals).

Susan Rochwarg strives for top real estate

"People buying and selling homes today find a very complex and sophisticated industry, requiring help from more educated and experienced professionals than ever before," says Susan Rochwarg, RE/MAX Preferred realtor. "My skills, services and marketing must be top notch, not only to compete but to be a leader in today's real estate market, setting trends as well as sales records. That's why I formed the Susan Sells Marketing Team."

Created in June of this year, and headed by her husband, Jeff French, the SSMT is responsible for the creation of all home marketing and promotional pieces, from color Home Feature Sheets to media and direct mail advertising. All of these are produced on Ms. Rochwarg's in-house desk-top publishing system. The team directs special events such as her annual Kite Festival, recently held at West Middle School and enjoyed by more than 350 kids and 'kids at heart.' The festival raised more than $220 to benefit the Children's Miracle Network.

Ms. Rochwarg's exceptional service, commitment and integrity in business practice, and the Susan Sells trademark have become recognized by residential home buyers and sellers in the Merrimack Valley. She has helped first-time home buyers with their step into home ownership, and long-time residents with a difficult move out of the area. She's introduced newcomers and transferees to that special flavor that our area has and, most often, helped families who want to continue to make Andover and North Andover their special place, sell their current homes and buy their dream home.

Ms. Rochwarg has always been at the leading edge in her local market place, and among industry peers with such things as Color Home Feature Sheets, plot plans and room sizes all available at her listings, personal promotion pieces, and Top-60 News marketing her listings to top producing agents by personal mail. She invests her personal income for special events and community service.

Communication is the heart of Susan Sells: listening to needs and special requirements, and anticipating concerns and anxieties. In real estate sales for nine years, Ms. Rochwarg has a breadth of knowledge and experience to back her, yet continues to forge new and progressive ideas.

"I don't accept mediocrity or status quo. Change is a challenge for us all to benefit from."

Personal recommendation and referral, past business and agent-to-agent referrals account for most of Ms. Rochwarg's business. Her 1994 goals are 100 houses sold with 100 satisfied buyers and sellers. Here's what you can expect:

"From the moment (we) met you, we knew we were in good hands. We had...become a little frustrated, wary of realtors who wasted our time showing us homes which did not meet our requirements. From our first telephone conversation, I could tell that you were listening and trying to find out what you needed to know to be able to help us. You were professional, accessible and pleasant. If we hear of anyone planning to move to Andover, believe me, we will pass on your name."

Or it might be this one: "Thanks so much for all your work in selling our home. We know you had to put a lot of extra effort into this transaction, not only because of the tight market, but because of all the snags we ran into along the way. We really appreciate everything you did for us. We certainly made the right choice in choosing you for our agent."

Margaret Pustell is Ms. Earth Week

By Alix Driscoll

Margaret Pustell runs Earth Week for the town of Andover each April. It's big business!

The town-wide cleanup involves most neighborhoods, schools, industries and the downtown business district. She is the prime mover of thousands of Andover youngsters, business people and neighbors eager to make Andover a cleaner and more environmentally-friendly town.

"Volunteerism is wonderful if you can work on something your heart is in," she said. "I've enjoyed finding that I can put something like this together."

According to Ms. Pustell, the first Earth Day was celebrated with great flourish in Andover. In 1970 Tom Cone, Phillips Academy biology teacher, organized students from the academy and Andover High School to cleanup the downtown area and to construct a mountain of trash in the Old Town Hall parking lot.

The voluntary recycling program started about that time as a reaction to dealing with waste in a responsible manner. Ms. Pustell was a member of that committee for a decade and a half until it became a town program several years ago.

In 1990, the 20th anniversary of Earth Day, Ms. Pustell asked schools and local organizations to exhibit their environmental projects at Old Town Hall.

"Over 1,000 people came and Earth Day took on a life of its own."

In 1992, she organized a hands-on experience, a town-wide trash and litter cleanup day. Snowy weather that year caused a strategic move to designating an entire Earth Week in 1993, according to Ms. Pustell. It allowed a more thorough, all-town cleanup with a concluding celebration. Schoolchildren policed their campuses, Pike School built a monument to waste and Phillips Academy held an all-school cleanup. Skin divers from Shawsheen Watershed Environmental Action Team retrieved shopping carts and other trophies from the Shawsheen River. People in the area who fish are anxious to bring the salmon back to the river, she said.

"We think it's a good basis to make people aware of the environment and the way we are treating it. We're through throwing trash all over the planet and using up resources," said Ms. Pustell.

"In Andover people welcome anyone who wants to do something. You go to town meeting and state your case."

Ms. Pustell speaks enthusiastically of the ability of a citizen to make beneficial changes in town. She said this is due to the town meeting form of government and strong support from Board of Selectmen and the town manager. The town manager would like the cleanup to be an annual event, she said.

Earth Week 1994 will be April 24-30. Harold Parker State Forest volunteers plan to join to clean their woodlands. The educational focus for next year will be on generating less trash by using fewer wrappers she said. She hopes more folks will be involved as families and neighborhood groups.

Prior to coming to Andover, she raised five children in Melrose with her husband, Robert Pustell. For several years Mr. Pustell has led the Andover Conservation Commission, the appointed board mandated to purchase open space and protect wetlands, lakes and streams.

Ms. Pustell is the AVIS warden of nearby Stanley Reservation and a member of the Appalachian Mountain Club and Friends of Poms Pond.

She takes the message of Earth Week into her avocation. Her generous, sunlit pottery studio is filled with ceramic bowls and pie plates meant to be used and clay waiting to be refashioned. Objects for the kiln include a cave constructed by granddaughter, Geneva, for her goldfish tank.

Ms. McDonough's door is open

By Alix Driscoll

Marsha McDonough's door is always open.

Through it one morning recently streamed enthusiastic students from the culinary arts shop showing off the latest confection for lunch, student leaders planning homecoming week events, faculty members chatting about programs and parents organizing booster support for sports teams. Ms. McDonough, superintendent and director of Greater Lawrence Technical School on River Road, welcomed each graciously.

Ms. McDonough is in her third year as superintendent. She came to Andover after 10 years as an administrator in technical schools in Massachusetts and Connecticut. Her interest in technical schools, previously called vocational schools, began when she joined teams of educators who evaluated these schools in New England.

She was invited to apply for an administration position and quickly became director of Vinal Regional Vocational Technical School District in Middletown, Conn. This meant a commute of 126 miles each way to her home in Wakefield for three years.

Sometimes during the week she drove home to attend her son's basketball games.

"I got an apartment. When I drove home weekends my dinner was waiting. My husband and son are very supportive. This gave me enough freedom to immerse myself in the position," she said.

Her husband, Robert, teaches social studies in Woburn and their son, Devin, a student at Stonehill College, is in the Irish studies program at University College Dublin for this year.

After leaving Connecticut, she directed Waltham Vocational High School for four years and accepted the Andover position in 1991. Greater Lawrence Technical School is the second largest tech school in the commonwealth and draws on students from four Merrimack Valley communities: Andover, North Andover, Lawrence and Methuen.

Ms. McDonough's style dovetails well with current Total Quality Management practices. She manages her 250-member faculty and 1,500 students by walking about and remaining accessible.

During this academic year the Technical School is participating in a TQM-in-education pilot program for the Massachusetts Department of Education, said the superintendent.

"Every idea we've put forward, she has been willing to give us a chance and has been willing to do it," said Gene McCarthy, a faculty member and coordinator of teacher development programs.

She sets high goals for her students.

"I want all the students to feel their own importance and their own roles. All are special. All have the tools to develop a future for themselves. The best we can do is give them the opportunity to succeed, to build self-esteem and for good jobs.

"Creating is a gift," she said.

Students can demonstrate giftedness in a variety of ways, according to Ms. McDonough, and an applied learning school with academic classes and shops offers many opportunities to excel.

The former English teacher uses the teacher-as-coach paradigm.

"We don't just impart information. We give students access so they can be their own facilitators of learning, so they can ask the right questions," she said.

Recently, Ms. McDonough was appointed to the Massachusetts Commission on the Common Core of Learning. The 40 members will develop a set of statewide goals and specific student academic performance standards in academic subjects and technology for all Massachusetts students by next June.

In addition, Ms.

McDonough is a member of Lt. Gov. Cellucci's School to Work task force and serves on the New England board that accredits American schools abroad. Recently she evaluated schools in Alexandria, Dusseldorf, and Madrid, and will go to Algiers in November.

How does she manage it all? She does her paper work well into the night.

"Late nights. It's not easy."
